First Primary Too Close To Call

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — With the outcome still considered too close to call for either Republicans or Democrats, voting begins shortly after midnight tonight in New Hampshire's presidential primary.

Most of the rivals in the crowded Democratic race were ready to make their last-minute pitches today. Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall, generally believed to be the Democratic frontrunners, scheduled tours at shops, factories and offices. So did Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris. Former vicepresidential candidate Sargent Shriver is in Massachusetts.

On the Republican side, Ronald Reagan, who has mounted a stiff challenge to President Ford, concluded a campaign Sunday that covered nearly 2,000 miles by bus caravan in 19 days since Jan. 1.

As Reagan's plane left Manchester airport in a steady rain, his state campaign chairman, Hugh Gregg, said if Reagan "goes out of here with anything better than 40 per cent, he'll go all the way."

Gregg predicted Reagan would get "something better than 40 per cent" on Tuesday but declined to say he would win. Ford campaign strategists have said anything over half will be considered a victory for the President.

In Washington, Ford said "things looked good" for him in New Hampshire. Reagan did not make any predictions during his final day of campaigning in Nashua, but spoke of "fingernail chewing time."

The candidates of both parties have been reluctant to make victory predictions, with understated expectations allowing them to claim all the greater victory when the New Hampshire results are in.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington won four Puerto Rican delegates to the National Democratic Convention. Two uncommitted delegates also were elected. Jackson, the only candidate to campaign in Puerto Rico, had been expected to take a majority of the 17 seats up for grabs, but five of the eight caucuses were suspended after fistfights broke out over a dispute involving allegiance to the Democratic party.

In Mississippi congressional district caucuses Saturday, Alabama Gov. George Wallace gained nine delegates, Carter four and Shriver three. Party officials said Wallace would pick up two more delegates and Carter and Shriver one each when the last five delegates are selected at the state convention next Sunday.

Democrats and Republicans will hold precinct caucuses in Minnesota Tuesday night, with party officials predicting a close battle between Ford and Reagan and a shoo-in victory for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn. Humphrey has said he is not a candidate but would accept a convention draft.

New Hampshire is the first direct electoral test of the candidates. As usual, voters in Dixville Notch will be the first to cast their ballots — shortly after midnight.

Neither Wallace nor Jackson is on the nonbinding presidential ballot, but Jackson is running a slate of delegates.

The Democratic campaigning has been marked by an absence of stark differences among the five major contenders. Udall, Bayh, Shriver and Harris are all considered to be liberals, while Carter is regarded as a moderate.

The result has been a large field of still-undecided Democratic voters — as many as 50 per cent, according to some campaign officials. Gregg has said there probably are 20 per cent undecided in the Republican race.

Carter, Udall, Shriver and Harris answered questions for an hour Sunday on the ABC-TV program "Issues and Answers" and found few areas of disagreement.

Carter did differ with his rivals on whether to provide government jobs for the unemployed and said he was the only contender willing to face Wallace head-on in the South, where the Alabamian is strong.

The "major thrust" in solving the unemployment problem, Carter said, should be left to the private sector, with government providing federal aid and incentives to industry to avoid layoffs.

His four opponents all have advocated a government job program. Harris declared that "a job ought to be as automatic as unemployment compensation."

The contestants said they were convinced the party's nominee would emerge from the primaries and not from a brokered convention.

Udall said he does not believe Wallace will be able to dictate terms at the convention in New York City next July and said if Wallace were the party's nominee "then I'm going to do what he did in 1968 and simply go off and do my politics someplace else."

Richard Stout, Udall's chief spokesman, said later that Udall simply was reiterating his past statements that he would not support a Democratic ticket if Wallace were on it and did not mean by the remark that he would seek the presidency on a third-party ticket.

Wallace bolted the Democrats in 1968 and ran as a third party candidate.

All of the contenders have shunned the frontrunner label.

On Sunday's television appearance, Carter smiled when described as the likely leader. Shriver termed Udall's organization the best in New Hampshire, and Udall said he would not play "hot potato expectations." Harris said he hoped to finish among the top three but that he didn't have to.

In a solo appearance on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation" from Manchester, Bayh said, "I think we have got to be in the top three, I think we will."

In other political developments: —Reagan said while campaigning in Nashua on Sunday that he was unaware about money being diverted from his 1970 gubernatorial campaign to other state candidates until he was told about it by a reporter several days ago. He said he "never would have condoned it ... never would have stood still for it."

The Washington Post reported on Sunday that at least $100,000 contributed to Reagan's 1970 campaign was diverted secretly to other GOP candidates in the 1970 state primary.

—The Real Paper in Boston reported that a telephone poll taken by a University of New Hampshire political science class showed Reagan and Ford running even in New Hampshire, and Carter heading the Democratic race over secondplace Bayh and third-place Udall. The paper said 233 registered Republicans and 236 registered Democrats responded in the poll taken in New Hampshire two weeks ago.

Rhodes Wins Remap Skirmish

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Given the clear sign by a federal court, Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes convened the state Apportionment Board today on a precarious legal course designed to topple Democratic majorities in the legislature.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. Battisti turned down Friday two motions by Democratic officeholders who sought to block or delay the board session. They seek to protect Senate and House districts shaped by their party in 1971.

Battisti, chief judge of the federal court system's northern Ohio district, acted after being assured that the five-member board, now 3-2 Republican, would not proceed to actually draw new districts at today's session.

He also, in effect, gave permission for the board to petition him to modify or vacate a 1973 Battisti injunction that until now has barred all court actions challenging the Democratic apportionment plan. The judge said such a procedure would be "a lawyerlike and appropriate procedure."

Rhodes and his legal advisers were gratified that the judge rejected efforts by Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson, a Democratic member of the board, and Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard.

Ferguson had said he believed he could not legally attend such a meeting of a board which normally meets only every 10 years following each federal census. Del Bane's unsuccessful motion contended that today's meeting itself would constitute a violation of the judge's injunction.

At stake for Democrats are the 59-40 House and 21-12 Senate majorities their party won as a result of the 1971 reapportionment.

Despite federal court decisions upholding the plan as meeting U.S. Supreme Court decisions for districts virtually equal in population, Rhodes insists they violate the Ohio Constitution.

He cites as violations those districts which were shaped on the basis of precinct populations rather than being formed along county, municipal, or township borders. The governor also claims they fail to meet a requirement for districts to be "compact and contiguous."

The board's meeting was expected to overshadow otherwise routine deliberations this week in the legislature.

Most of the attention there will focus around a House committee session Tuesday on a Senate-approved bill giving Ohio a new utility rate making formula, along with Senate committee discussions on Wednesday of a major bill, already approved by the House, to protect homeowners against future inflationary increases in their property tax bills.

HELP WANTED — Sharon Eyerman, Information and Referral Officer for Pickaway County, is seeking volunteers to help her man the telephones in her office on a part-time basis. Mrs. Eyerman, who opened the office last July after receiving a CETA Title 6 grant from the Pickaway County Commissioners, has been swamped in her dealings with the problems and questions of others. She needs volunteers to handle telephone calls one day a week so she can collect resource materials. Persons interested should call or visit her office on the second floor of the Memorial Hall.

Patrolman Recovers Stolen Car Sunday

Ptl. Fred Summers of the local post of the State Highway Patrol recovered a stolen car and made an arrest of a man he thinks is involved in a professional auto theft ring.

Summers was on routine patrol on I-71 at 9:22 p.m. Sunday when he observed a car in the bushes in the northbound rest area. He noted that the car was backed up to the curb with the rear in some bushes. He then obtained the registration and ran a file check on the vehicle.

The file check came back over the patrol radio positive that the auto had been stolen out of Shively, Ky., a suburb of Louisville.

Upon further investigation of the vehicle, Ptl. Summers found that the ignition had been knocked out of the auto and the trunk lock had also been removed. He approached the car and found the driver pretending to be asleep.

The officer then took Frederick H. Bailey, 20, Croton, Conn., from the auto and interrogated him. Bailey was later taken to the Franklin County Jail and booked for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Ptl. Summers said this morning that such a charge becomes a felony when the car is taken out of state.

Owner of the stolen vehicle is Frank T. Hollan, Louisville, Ky. The auto was reported stolen on Feb. 12.

Bailey told the officer at the time of his arrest that he was taking the car to Connecticut for a friend. Summers also reports that Bailey has a list of convictions and had a title to another vehicle at the time of his arrest. The officer said he had reason to believe Bailey was involved in a professional ring because of the other registration.

See Tighter LEAA Curbs By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the crime rate steadily rising, moves are underway in Congress to tighten controls over the federal agency created to make America's streets safe.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, established under the Safe Streets Act of 1968, has doled out more than $4 billion in crime-fighting grants to local government.

Most of the money has gone to police, much of it to purchase hardware and gadgetry, and Congress is beginning to consider whether firmer controls are needed.

The LEAA's own records show millions of dollars spent for radios, police cars — some of them equipped with computer consoles — and other hardware items including some helicopters and armored vehicles.

The program was supposed to foster innovation in law enforcement. But some of the innovative projects have looked too much like Dick Tracy gadgetry to many congressional critics. They point to such projects as a wristwatch designed to monitor the wearer's vital health signs or a research project funded to find the ideal shoe for foot patrolmen.

Periodic congressional investigations have produced highly critical reports on the LEAA, and more may be on the way.

The House Judiciary Committee soon will hold hearings on the LEAA, and this week Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., plans to file a bill that would require the agency to evaluate programs more carefully and to establish closer congressional review.

Ford Pushes Governors On Revenue Sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today urged the nation's governors to support a renewal of federal revenue sharing and warned that the U.S. economic recovery would be imperiled if Congress fails to extend the program.

In a speech prepared for a meeting of the National Governors' Conference, Ford said, "The whole concept of federal-state relations is at stake" and if movement toward more general revenue sharing fails this year, "there will be a new escalation in the categorical programs of an increasingly centralized government."

Ford said that some view federal-state relations as "the most deadly boring of all political issues." But he said the issue "really turns me on."

He pointed out that George Washington had warned 200 years ago against "the danger of the monolithic, centralized power of the federal government" and in recent years government has grown bigger and "more meddlesome, but not always more efficient nor more responsive to local needs."

He charged Congress with not moving with enough speed in response to his request last April to extend the current $30.2-billion, five-year program of revenue sharing which expires at the end of this year.

Ford told the governors, "the nation needs your help" and told them they were right "in saying that our present economic recovery would be endangered if the Congress were to end revenue sharing. It could force the states to fire workers, to increase state taxes and even to institute new taxation. You know and I know that we must join forces to keep revenue sharing alive."

Ford said he is sending to Congress programs for community services, Medicaid, and education, which would consolidate numerous categorical programs, which are federal grants for specific projects, into single

New JFK Romance Story False

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — President John F. Kennedy had a two-year romance with a Washington artist while he was in the White House, the weekly newspaper National Enquirer says.

In its edition dated March 2, the newspaper quotes a friend of Kennedy as saying the late president had an affair with Mary Pinchot Meyer, a longtime friend of Kennedy and his wife, beginning in January 1962 and continuing until he was assassinated in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

The article said Kennedy met with Mrs. Meyer at the White House when First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy was away and on one occasion smoked marijuana with her there. It also alleged that a diary Mrs. Meyer kept about the affair was burned by a CIA agent after her unsolved murder.

Mrs. Meyer, divorced from a CIA official before the alleged affair with Kennedy, was shot to death Oct. 12, 1964, as she walked along the C&O Canal tow-path in Washington's historic Georgetown area. A young District of Washington resident was tried for the crime but was acquitted.

The Enquirer quoted James Truitt, a friend of both Kennedy and Mrs. Meyer and a former executive of The Washington Post, as describing the first rendezvous this way:

"... A White House limousine driven by a Secret Service agent arrived. He drove Mary to the White House where JFK met her and took her into the bedroom and locked the door. From then on, clear up until the assassination almost two years later, they met this way regularly, sometimes two or three times a week."

Timothy J. Reardon Jr., an aide to Kennedy, said, "nothing like that ever happened in the White House, with her or anyone else."

According to court papers, Truitt, who now resides in Mexico, was certified by a physician to be suffering a mental illness "such as to impair his judgment and cause him to be irresponsible" during 1969 divorce proceedings and a court-appointed conservator was named to manage his financial matters. The conservatorship ended in 1972.

There have been recent allegations of Kennedy romances, including one with Judith Exner, who said she was involved with organized crime figures at the same time. Former aides have said they did not believe Kennedy could have carried on such affairs.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged up slightly in early trading today as profit taking set in after the explosive rally late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was ahead a fraction and New York Stock Exchange issues gaining in price held a small lead over those declining. Trading was described as active.

Brokers said many investors were using the market's swift gains on Thursday and Friday as an opportunity to cash in on paper profits.

The market's continuation of its New Year's rally was traced to investor optimism over rising corporate dividends and profits and few signs of upward pressures on interest rates.

He said no state would receive less federal money under these proposals than it did in fiscal 1976 under the programs to be consolidated.

The President said he also will propose reducing or ending requirements that states provide matching funds to qualify for federal aid.

The issue of renewing revenue sharing is creating a growing division between Democrats in Congress and Democrats who make up a majority of local government officials.

Although many Democrats in Congress are lukewarm to any extension, most local government officials are enthusiastic for the program and rely on it to bolster their governmental budgets.

And there is growing fear among governors, mayors and county officials that the program may not survive or will get at best a one-year extension to delay the crisis until after this year's elections.

"For a long time, we just couldn't believe it could be possible that Congress would not continue it," Gov. Robert Ray, R-Iowa, said in a news conference Sunday. "Now, we think so — unfortunately."

One of the problems is that revenue sharing was born as a Republican program in the Nixon administration. Another problem as far as Congress is concerned is the lingering reluctance of many lawmakers to bear the onus of raising the tax money and then give it back to the states to claim credit when it is spent.

Also of significance in this growing debate is the fact that the direct grants with few strings attached threaten the elaborate bureaucracies, which surveys show to be staffed largely by Democrats, which administer the traditional categorical grant programs.

On the other hand, local office holders, most of them Democrats, have become dependent on the federal money and the freedom to spend it where it is most needed rather than in mandatory channels.

Ray, a Republican, was reflecting the view of most local officials when he said it was "absolutely essential" that revenue sharing be saved. "They desperately need it," said Ray, chairman of the conference, "and, if we do not get it, I think you will find some catastrophic effects in local government."

New Beef Grading Helps Cheaper Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — New federal definitions for the quality of beef Americans buy go into effect today, meaning the steak you buy as "prime" meat may have been graded only "choice" last week.

Under the new rules, standards for "prime" and "choice" beef will be widened to include meat with less marbling — or flecks of fat. The more marbling in the beef, the more tender and juicy it is.

The U.S. Agriculture Department, which had originally hoped to implement the new rating system almost a year ago, says consumers won't be able to tell the difference in appearance or taste but that the changes will cut costs for cattlemen, keep retail costs down and cut down the amount of grain used to feed the cattle Americans eat.

Historically, the tenderest and most expensive of the four grades of beef commonly seen in retail stores is "prime," which comes from cattle pampered and fed grain during much of their lives, particularly in the final few months before slaughter.

"Choice" beef contains less marbling than "prime," and "good" beef has less than "choice." "Standard" is the fourth category.

The rise in grain prices in recent years has caused many cattle farmers and feed-lot operators to claim they have lost money until recently. With a loosening of the standards for the top two classes of beef, producers will be able to feed less grain to animals and still have them qualify for the more expensive grades.

The new rules were initially planned for adoption last April 14, but they were delayed by court challenges from producers and others, including consumer groups which contended that shoppers would be charged higher prices for lower quality beef. The last legal hurdle was cleared Sunday.

U.S. District Court Judge Patrick Higginbotham of Dallas denied a temporary injunction that had been sought by the Texas baby beef industry, which claimed the new standards would dry up their industry and ultimately result in higher costs to consumers.

The baby beef raisers complained the new regulations would downgrade 20 to 50 per cent of their product from "good" to "standard" and argued that chain stores and consumers would not buy lowergraded baby beef.

Higginbotham said he denied the action because it was unlikely cattlemen could win their case in further proceedings. A hearing is still scheduled within 45 days on a motion for a permanent injunction.

Nixon Meets Red Chairman During Unofficial China Visit

PEKING (AP) — Continuing the replay of his historic visit to China four years ago, Richard M. Nixon met for an hour and 40 minutes today with Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

A Chinese government spokesman said the two men held a "friendly conversation on a wide range of subjects" at the Peking home of the 82-year-old chairman of the Chinese Communist party.

At the close of the conversation, Mao asked Nixon to convey his regards to President Ford, with whom Mao met for an hour and 50 minutes during Ford's visit to Peking last December.

No other information on the conversation was disclosed.

Nixon was accompanied by his wife, Pat, and an aide, John Brennan. Mao welcomed them briefly before sitting down to talk with Nixon. Also present were Acting Premier Hua Kuofeng, Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, Huang Chen, the head of the Chinese government's liaison office in Washington, and three other officials of the Chinese Foreign Ministry.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said on Feb. 6 that the Ford administration had no plans "to have any report or anything from the former President." But Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said on Saturday that the U.S. government "of course" wanted to hear about Nixon's discussions and impressions and that the former president would report these to Washington when he returned.

It was Mao who invited the Nixons to return to China and relive their 1972 visit that forged the first links between the United States and the 23-year-old Chinese Communist regime.

The private audience was the high point of a "private" visit with many of the trappings of a state visit: formal banquets, visits to schools and exhibits, limousines with flags and meetings with top officials.

Liquor Control Commission Suspends Licenses

The liquor license of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Henry Page Folsom Jr. Post, has been suspended for 28 days beginning March 18 it was announced by the Ohio Department of Liquor Control.

The local VFW post was cited for the following violations: two counts of having gambling devices (tip tickets), and conviction in Circleville Municipal Court for keeper of a place of gambling. The offenses allegedly occurred July 22, 1975.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles of Circleville had three similar charges before the Liquor Control Commission. The license of the FOE was suspended for seven days. However, execution of the penalty is suspended until July 21 and in the event the permit holder is not convicted of any further violation occurring in this extension period, such penalty is remitted without further action.

Circle Drive Homes Ransacked By Thieves

Thieves escaped with $2,335 in weapons, collectibles, and cash from the 939 Circle Drive home of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Carroll Saturday night and took cash and jewelry from another home on Circle Drive, possibly during the same period of time.

Circleville Police Sgt. Wes Barton said the thieves tried three times before gaining entry to the Carroll home between 7:30 and 11 p.m. Saturday.

Entry was gained by prying a sliding glass door off a patio at the rear of the home.

The thieves ransacked the home, spilling contents from dresser drawers and scattering personal papers on the floor. Hallway closets and the basement were also ransacked.

The thieves took $200 in cash, Scout medals valued at $200, a set of presidential plates valued at $1,225, a Christmas plate valued at $150, a Sony portable color television set valued at $400, a Smith and Wesson 38 caliber stainless steel revolver valued at $160, a Smith and Wesson K22 revolver valued at $115, and a Rossie 38 caliber five-shot revolver valued at $65.

The Presidential plates, manufactured by the Franklin Mint, are made of silver with portraits of various United States presidents inlaid in gold.

The Scout medals, created by Norman Rockwell, are the set of six "Spirit of Scouting" medallions made of sterling silver, and the Christmas Plate, also of sterling silver, is Rockwell's "The Carolers."

Thieves forced the rear patio door of the home of Alice Dickinson, 938 Circle Drive, to take $17 in cash and a necklace valued at $25.

Part of the cash was taken from a wallet in the bedroom and part from a cabinet. The necklace was made from a 50-cent piece.

Thieves took a suitcase and some clothes after breaking into the 412 1/2 E. Main St. home of Charles Sheppard Saturday.

The lock on the rear storm door was pulled off, police said.

Legal Hassle Over Hearst Testimony

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With her lengthy testimony nearing an end, Patricia Hearst learns today whether she will be questioned about plans she helped draw up for bank robberies other than the one for which she is on trial.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter says he will rule today on whether Miss Hearst, 22, may be questioned about 17 documents found in her last fugitive hideout.

She is now on trial for a San Francisco bank robbery two months after she was kidnapped. Authorities say the notebooks and drawings could link her to planned bank heists in the Sacramento area, filling out part of the year on the run she has kept hidden from the jury.

The newspaper heiress, who has been on the witness stand since Feb. 13, has testified that her every move was in fear of her life, including her statements of allegiance to her Symbionese Liberation Arm captors. She defended her admitted cooperation with her terrorist kidnappers as her only means of survival.

"I was told I would be killed," she has said repeatedly when asked to explain her failure to surrender during a 19-month odyssey with the SLA.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. seeks to ask Miss Hearst about the stack of documents recovered from her apartment the day of her capture, Sept. 18. Included is a floor plan of a Bank of America branch in Sacramento with observations on bank personnel in Miss Hearst's handwriting.

Other papers include a list of banks and a yellow spiral notebook containing notes on escape routes and methods of disguise.

Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey has fought vigorously to keep the contents of the papers away from the seven-woman, five-man jury. He also refused to open up for questioning a full year — September 1974 to September 1975 — of Miss Hearst's life on the run.

New JFK Romance Story False

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — President John F. Kennedy had a two-year romance with a Washington artist while he was in the White House, the weekly newspaper National Enquirer says.

In its edition dated March 2, the newspaper quotes a friend of Kennedy as saying the late president had an affair with Mary Pinchot Meyer, a longtime friend of Kennedy and his wife, beginning in January 1962 and continuing until he was assassinated in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

The article said Kennedy met with Mrs. Meyer at the White House when First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy was away and on one occasion smoked marijuana with her there. It also alleged that a diary Mrs. Meyer kept about the affair was burned by a CIA agent after her unsolved murder.

Mrs. Meyer, divorced from a CIA official before the alleged affair with Kennedy, was shot to death Oct. 12, 1964, as she walked along the C&O Canal tow-path in Washington's historic Georgetown area. A young District of Washington resident was tried for the crime but was acquitted.

The Enquirer quoted James Truitt, a friend of both Kennedy and Mrs. Meyer and a former executive of The Washington Post, as describing the first rendezvous this way:

"... A White House limousine driven by a Secret Service agent arrived. He drove Mary to the White House where JFK met her and took her into the bedroom and locked the door. From then on, clear up until the assassination almost two years later, they met this way regularly, sometimes two or three times a week."

Timothy J. Reardon Jr., an aide to Kennedy, said, "nothing like that ever happened in the White House, with her or anyone else."

According to court papers, Truitt, who now resides in Mexico, was certified by a physician to be suffering a mental illness "such as to impair his judgment and cause him to be irresponsible" during 1969 divorce proceedings and a court-appointed conservator was named to manage his financial matters. The conservatorship ended in 1972.

There have been recent allegations of Kennedy romances, including one with Judith Exner, who said she was involved with organized crime figures at the same time. Former aides have said they did not believe Kennedy could have carried on such affairs.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged up slightly in early trading today as profit taking set in after the explosive rally late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was ahead a fraction and New York Stock Exchange issues gaining in price held a small lead over those declining. Trading was described as active.

The market's continuation of its New Year's rally was traced to investor optimism over rising corporate dividends and profits and few signs of upward pressures on interest rates.

She defended her admitted cooperation with her terrorist kidnappers as her only means of survival.

"I was told I would be killed," she has said repeatedly when asked to explain her failure to surrender during a 19-month odyssey with the SLA.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. seeks to ask Miss Hearst about the stack of documents recovered from her apartment the day of her capture, Sept. 18. Included is a floor plan of a Bank of America branch in Sacramento with observations on bank personnel in Miss Hearst's handwriting.

Other papers include a list of banks and a yellow spiral notebook containing notes on escape routes and methods of disguise.

Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey has fought vigorously to keep the contents of the papers away from the seven-woman, five-man jury. He also refused to open up for questioning a full year — September 1974 to September 1975 — of Miss Hearst's life on the run.

Probe Murder Of Michigan Girl

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP)—Police were continuing investigation today into the murder of an 18-year-old Michigan woman who was found strangled and bludgeoned Sunday in a Florence motel room.

The victim was identified by Florence police as Patricia Lynn James of Clarkston, Mich. An all-points bulletin was issued for her missing automobile.

The victim's father said the woman was returning from Florida and had checked into the hotel Saturday.

Citizens Band Radios Criticized

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Soaring popularity of the citizens' band radio is giving headaches to police.

"Some of our guys are really honked off by the new breed of CB operators," says Lt. James Graves, commander of the state police post here.

County 4-H Club Committee . . . Not so, says Steve Bartels, 4-H extension agent . . .

And Paul Dean, chairman of the Fair Board, says his group has nothing to do with it either . . . Here's the story, as near as we can figure . . .

A person named M. Lemaster of Clarksburg is running the bingo games . . . In order to comply with the Ohio Revised Code, he is donating one-third of the gross receipts to a charity . . .

In this case, it will go to a special fund to be administered by a "Pickaway County 4-H Club Committee" (Not the 4-H Extension Advisory group) of which Forrest Easterday is the chairman . . . The money will be used for construction of a 4-H building at the fairgrounds . . . The fairboard will say what and where it will be built and 4-H clubs will have the use of the building during the fair and other times during the year . . .

Mr. Lemaster rents the Coliseum from the fairboard for the Bingo and pays all the expenses . . .

A Page Of Opinion

Britain Changes Course

A smart politician knows when it is time to reverse directions. Harold Wilson, within two years of holding longest tenure as Britain's prime minister in this century, has thrown his Labor government in full reverse.

Riding a crest of strong socialist dogma back to power in 1974, Wilson took one look at the facts of life facing Britain and began undercutting his own ideologies. The far-left elements of the Labor Party, once near dominance and long carrying more weight than their numbers warrant, were reshuffled into less important positions in the cabinet and down-to-earth policies were promulgated to bring Britain out of what has been described as its worst crisis since 1939.

Elements of that crisis included an inflation rate double that of most other western European nations, rising unemployment and sinking trade.

Britain has embarked on a new austerity program designed to go far beyond mere cosmetics. Government policies now falling into place call for a lower tax load for middle-income Britons in the April budget coupled with reductions in civil servants, social services and the total budget.

There are even calls for people with higher incomes to retain more of their earnings as incentives for greater capital investment. The Labor government almost sounds as if it was using a Tory handbook.

Britain's leaders are wise enough to see there is little room for political opportunism when the economic chips are down.

Health Of Statesmen

By JIM BISHOP

In an era of crisis in domestic and foreign affairs, the health of our President bears directly on the health of the nation. Gerald Ford's decision to publicize the results of his "medical checkup" is not only refreshing, but a challenge to other candidates for the office.

Ford is a sturdy, healthy human. One assumes that his emotional health is also muscle-bound, although the White House has issued no psychological evaluation. This, to my way of thinking, is as important as the status of heart, lungs, blood pressure and cholesterol level.

When Richard Nixon was threatened with impeachment, he is alleged to have told 30 Congressmen: "I can go into my office and pick up the telephone and, in 25 minutes, 70 million people will be dead."

If this is true, President Nixon was emotionally unstable. Whether it was intended to be facetious or vengeful, the President could order a nuclear missile attack on the Soviet Union. If, in effect, Congress threatened to destroy Nixon, the president could destroy a large part of the world.

Most Americans assume that President Kennedy won a victory over Russia when, in the Cuban missile crisis, he caused the Soviets to remove their intermediate missiles from Castro's island.

I think he panicked. When he told Krushchev, "We will regard any missile coming from Cuba as coming from the Soviet Union," it was an ultimatum. Kennedy had to sweat out the response. So did we. He took a long chance, and won.

The Soviets think they won. The price of shipping the missiles back to Leningrad was Kennedy's promise that the U.S. would not invade Cuba. This emboldened Castro to vilify the U.S. with impunity.

Five years ago I contracted to write a book called "FDR's Last Year." I felt that 1944-1945 was the most crucial year of the century for America, and that FDR was the architect for victory.

For three years I chased Roosevelt survivors for interviews, bits and pieces of history. I was stunned to learn that on Monday, March 27, 1944, FDR submitted to a secret medical examination at Bethesda. Navy physicians discovered that he was a dying man, irreversibly ill of heart disease.

Admiral Ross McIntire, White House physician, engineered a cover-up. He knew his boss was fading from life, but he applauded when, two months later, the President announced that he would run for a fourth term.

McIntire also lied to the press, announcing, in effect, that FDR was fit as a fiddle, except for "sinus flareups." He also choked into silence the young Navy cardiologist who discovered the terrifying truth.

In the autumn of 1944, when Roosevelt went to Yalta to bargain the world with the Russians, he had aphasia. His jaw hung slack; he had difficulty remembering what he was talking about.

To America, the physical and emotional health of our presidents is as important as their knowledge and judgment. I interviewed Dwight D. Eisenhower in February, 1956. I spent several days in the White House asking questions of many persons.

He was pink and cherubic. His head appeared to be on straight. And yet I was stunned when he told me he knew nothing of economics. Ike did not comprehend the value of a buck.

"My life," he said, "has been spent in the military. If I needed 500 planes or 1,000 tanks, I had no time to let the contracts out to the lowest bidder. All I did was write a requisition."

At a Texas ranch, Lyndon Johnson confided to me that he was spending $30 billions each year trying to win the war in Vietnam. His generals protested to him that they never had enough money, enough men, enough material, to win the conflict.

I dipped a bare foot into his swimming pool. "If we win, Mr. President, what will America get in return?" He shook his head dolefully and began to caw at some wild peacocks sitting on his fence.

Woodrow Wilson had a cerebral stroke in office. For a time, he could neither speak nor think rationally. The affairs of his country were administered by his wife and his physician, Admiral Cary Grayson.

They didn't bother to tell Vice President Thomas Marshall that he should be running the country. But then, what's a Vice President? ...

Czech Communists In Party Split?

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — As the Czechoslovak Communist party congress approaches, Western diplomats here say they detect signs of a split within the Prague regime over how to rid the nation of the lingering trauma of 1968.

The party — or at least a faction thereof — has floated what diplomats here regard as a "trial balloon" of reconciliation with the purged members of Alexander Dubcek's 1968 "Prague Spring". However, this was quickly followed by a stiff warning from ultraconservatives that Dubcek's former followers still posed a menace.

"It is a very divided leadership," according to one diplomatic source. "The issues left over from 1968 are the most neuralgic point."

Those in and out of favor are not counting on an ideological truce at the 15th party congress which convenes in April — two months after the pace-setting Soviet congress opening in Moscow on Tuesday.

It will be Czechoslovakia's second "legal" congress since the Soviet-led invasion in August 1968, put an end to Dubcek's "socialism with a human face." A post-invasion congress of Dubcek supporters later was declared null and void.

Now, the hardliners in the party — notably Vasil Bilak — still regard the germ of Dubcek liberalism to be so virulent that the least relaxation of its quarantine will cause a new epidemic.

Bilak, who is responsible for ties with foreign Communist parties, has been insisting that any move toward liberalization was "entirely unacceptable and politically very harmful."

There is speculation that President Gustav Husak, who also is the party leader and regarded as a middle-of-the-roader, would like to increase industrial efficiency and overcome political apathy by granting absolute to purged plant managers as a first step toward general rehabilitation.

Husak, himself, was jailed during Stalinist purges and later rehabilitated to become a prominent figure in the "Prague Spring." After the invasion, he threw his support to the Kremlin and became Dubcek's successor.

The nearly 500,000 Czechoslovak party members purged after the 1968 invasion remain outcasts. Few have recanted.

"Why should I?" said a former high-ranking technocrat, who now holds a menial job. "I've done nothing wrong."

A Communist for more than 20 years, he says he foresees no chance of regaining his party card without an unexpected, drastic shift in political policy. His former post is filled by a more orthodox Communist who could not be expected to yield it graciously.

The political spoils system and not ideology, sources here say, is the chief barrier to an internal truce. In their estimation, opportunists have taken advantage of the purges to "make a career for themselves."

Some 165,000 of the purged Communists lost their jobs along with their party cards, by official count.

Strides Made In Pollution Control

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Richard Schmidt, vice president and general manager of Ecodyne's industrial waste treatment division, told an editorial roundtable that recent developments in water pollution control technology could significantly cut the amount industry must spend on the environment.

Schmidt pointed to a Northeastern paper mill that saved a total of $50,000 on pollution control costs and more than $24,000 yearly on energy and other operating costs by incorporating recent innovations into its wastewater treatment system.

The impact of such capital and operating saving on the industrial economy should not be minimized, Schmidt said, quoting Council of Environmental Quality figures which indicate some industries will spend 10 to 20 per cent of their total plant and equipment investment on pollution controls to meet existing federal laws.

Samuel Brady, a frontier scout who ranked with Simon Kenton and Daniel Boone in the Ohio region, escaped from the Indians in May of 1780 by leaping a Cuyahoga River gorge on the present site of Kent. The spot is still called Brady's Leap and is a tourist attraction.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1836, the siege of the Alamo began in San Antonio, Texas. The Texan defenders were overwhelmed and killed by Mexican attackers on March 6.

On this date:

In 1861, President-elect Abraham Lincoln arrived secretly in Washington to take office. A plot to assassinate him in Baltimore had been foiled.

In 1870, Mississippi was readmitted into the Union after the Civil War.

In 1933, Japan began occupation of China north of the Great Wall.

In 1942, in World War II, a Japanese submarine shelled an oil refinery near Santa Barbara, Calif.

In 1954, the first mass inoculation of children with Salk anti-polio vaccine began in Pittsburgh.

Ten years ago: Vice President Hubert Humphrey returned to Washington from a goodwill tour of Asia.

Five years ago: An international conference of Jews opened in Brussels, Belgium.

One year ago: The AFL-CIO called for new antitrust legislation to break up large oil companies.

Today's birthday: New York Yankee baseball coach Elston Howard is 46 years old.

Thought for today: He that is good at making excuses is seldom good for anything else — Benjamin Franklin, 1706-1790.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, early in the American Revolution, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia named a committee to buy muskets and bayonets and to promote their production.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

An energetic, forceful, driving personality seems to be in excellent health when suddenly he is stricken with a coronary.

The "Coronary Club" is not an exclusive one. Members come from every social, economic and intellectual group. In a single instant there is an explosive upheaval that alters the life pattern of the individual and those around him.

The tireless tycoon who could not find a spare moment to relax suddenly finds himself hospitalized. And for six weeks there is strict bed rest, no smoking, no telephone and rigid attention to weight. It always comes as a great surprise that his office miraculously continues to function without his indispensable presence.

A coronary attack means that a blood vessel, which brings nourishment to the heart muscle, has been blocked by disease. That part of the heart muscle deprived of its blood supply is, for the time being, knocked out of commission.

Complete rest is imperative so that the remaining healthy part of the heart can continue its uninterrupted beat until the whole heart returns to normal.

A heart attack is a shattering emotional experience which deserves sympathetic understanding.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — So great is activity in the stock market that history now lasts but a day.

Last Friday, when volume soared to a record 44.51 million shares on the N.Y. Stock Exchange, a researcher needed only to look at the previous day's newspaper to find the previous high, some 39.21 million shares.

And so great is the enthusiasm accompanying the trading volume that forecasts of 50-million-share days are as plentiful as forecasts for a cracking of the 1,000-point "barrier" almost any day.

With the Dow Jones industrial average at 987.80 points as the week ended, that height, reached for the first time just three years ago, could be achieved again with just one day's work.

It serves little purpose to point out that the industrial average now is right where it was 10 years ago, no higher.

In times such as these there is no bad news. None at all. A few analysts who attempt to introduce some cautionary advice quickly find themselves looking rather foolish.

Particularly unfortunate was the detailed analysis that appeared on Feb. 18 with the advice that "it's clear the stampede began to run out of momentum on Feb. 2."

At about the same time another analytical letter commented, "The Dow Jones industrial average has reached a major resistance area." A correction might be looked for, it advised.

The gentlemen who write these letters might possess wisdom of a very high order, but bulls, especially stampeding bulls, have no understanding of wisdom. They've been known to stampede right off a cliff to their death.

Only the sound of pounding hoofs is heard, and they lead onward, American Telephone & Telegraph raises its quarterly dividend. General Motors is confident of a big year in car sales. Business profits look good.

The kaleidoscope is shaken; a new picture emerges: interest rates are relatively low, inflation seems to be abating, retail sales and consumer confidence are climbing, unemployment is falling.

Never mind that General Motors seems to have misgauged the market for small cars, and big ones as well; that the decline in interest rates may have ended; that housing starts in January fell to the lowest rate since last July.

Bullish sentiment slots all negative

Today, there must be reassurance that "once a coronary, always a coronary" is a total misconception. Many patients who have suffered from a myocardial infarction, or coronary, are able to resume productive, active lives.

There is, however, a single requirement. They must learn to reorientate their lives so that little, or no, burden is placed on their hearts. This means a complete program of weight reduction, absence of tobacco, freedom from severe emotional tensions, and avoidance of excessive fatigue.

Unfortunately, some people who have recovered from the physical factors of a coronary suffer emotional problems that can be devastating.

Despite total physical recovery, some patients remain "coronary cripples" because of persistent, unfounded fears that another attack is inevitable. Such people pretend to live productive lives, yet so manipulate their time and activity that they deprive themselves of the real joys of living.

The person who has recovered from a heart attack may, indeed, have been granted a special blessing. He has been given another opportunity to readjust the structure of his life and to prolong it.

news as aberrations in a generally positive economic outlook, just as bearish sentiment does its best to ignore the good news.

There is great power behind this latest push — institutional power. Many people tend to forget that institutions now dominate trading in some stocks and, in fact, dominate the entire market on some days.

Volume today cannot be compared with that of 10 years ago, when the markets were made up of many individual investors, many of them trading odd lots.

Institutions trade massively, and when they become active together, as they are inclined to do, they can produce explosive volume and price changes.

Ohio Man Slain In Arizona

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — A young man found shot to death in a field near here has been identified by the Maricopa County Sheriff's office as Gary Groff, 24, of Dayton, Ohio, a student at Arizona State University.

Groff, an architecture student at ASU, was found dead Friday. Investigators said he apparently was running from an assailant when he was shot. An autopsy showed he died from a gunshot wound in the right side.

One of Groff's roommates, Rich Scmid, an ASU graduate assistant and student, said Groff had a car, but often hitchhiked because of car problems.

Groff was last seen alive in his apartment by a roommate Thursday afternoon, police said. The case is still under investigation.

We're Always On Wheels

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — America has turned into a nation on wheels around the house as well as on the road.

According to economists at Goodyear, the rubber industry will build seven million tires next year for yard tractors, cultivators, spreaders, wheel barrows, snow throwers, dune buggies, leafers, go-carts, trailers and other "miscellaneous" vehicles.

Because they aren't in constant use, many of the tires found on vehicles around the home never need replacing, Goodyear points out. So most of these sales are made to vehicle manufacturers instead of individuals.

Britain Changes Course

A smart politician knows when it is time to reverse directions. Harold Wilson, within two years of holding longest tenure as Britain's prime minister in this century, has thrown his Labor government in full reverse.

Riding a crest of strong socialist dogma back to power in 1974, Wilson took one look at the facts of life facing Britain and began undercutting his own idealogues. The far-left elements of the Labor Party, once near dominance and long carrying more weight than their numbers warrant, were reshuffled into less important positions in the cabinet and down-to-earth policies were promulgated to bring Britain out of what has been described as its worst crisis since 1939.

Elements of that crisis included an inflation rate double that of most other western European nations, rising unemployment and sinking trade.

Britain has embarked on a new austerity program designed to go far beyond mere cosmetics. Government policies now falling into place call for a lower tax load for middle-income Britons in the April budget coupled with reductions in civil servants, social services and the total budget.

There are even calls for people with higher incomes to retain more of their earnings as incentives for greater capital investment. The Labor government almost sounds as if it was using a Tory handbook.

Britain's leaders are wise enough to see there is little room for political opportunism when the economic chips are down.

Health Of Statesmen

By JIM BISHOP

In an era of crisis in domestic and foreign affairs, the health of our President bears directly on the health of the nation. Gerald Ford's decision to publicize the results of his "medical checkup" is not only refreshing, but a challenge to other candidates for the office.

Ford is a sturdy, healthy human. One assumes that his emotional health is also muscle-bound, although the White House has issued no psychological evaluation. This, to my way of thinking, is as important as the status of heart, lungs, blood pressure and cholesterol level.

When Richard Nixon was threatened with impeachment, he is alleged to have told 30 Congressmen: "I can go into my office and pick up the telephone and, in 25 minutes, 70 million people will be dead."

If this is true, President Nixon was emotionally unstable. Whether it was intended to be facetious or vengeful, the President could order a nuclear missile attack on the Soviet Union. If, in effect, Congress threatened to destroy Nixon, the president could destroy a large part of the world.

Most Americans assume that President Kennedy won a victory over Russia when, in the Cuban missile crisis, he caused the Soviets to remove their intermediate missiles from Castro's island.

I think he panicked. When he told Khrushchev, "We will regard any missile coming from Cuba as coming from the Soviet Union," it was an ultimatum. Kennedy had to sweat out the response. So did we. He took a long chance, and won.

The Soviets think they won. The price of shipping the missiles back to Leningrad was Kennedy's promise that the U.S. would not invade Cuba. This emboldened Castro to vilify the U.S. with impunity.

Five years ago I contracted to write a book called "FDR's Last Year." I felt that 1944-1945 was the most crucial year of the century for America, and that FDR was the architect for victory.

For three years I chased Roosevelt survivors for interviews, bits and pieces of history. I was stunned to learn that on Monday, March 27, 1944, FDR submitted to a secret medical examination at Bethesda. Navy physicians discovered that he was a dying man, irreversibly ill of heart disease.

Admiral Ross McIntire, White House physician, engineered a cover-up. He knew his boss was fading from life, but he applauded when, two months later, the President announced that he would run for a fourth term.

McIntire also lied to the press, announcing, in effect, that FDR was fit as a fiddle, except for "sinus flareups." He also choked into silence the young Navy cardiologist who discovered the terrifying truth.

In the autumn of 1944, when Roosevelt went to Yalta to bargain the world with the Russians, he had aphasia. His jaw hung slack; he had difficulty remembering what he was talking about.

To America, the physical and emotional health of our presidents is as important as their knowledge and judgment. I interviewed Dwight D. Eisenhower in February, 1956. I spent several days in the White House asking questions of many persons.

He was pink and cherubic. His head appeared to be on straight. And yet I was stunned when he told me he knew nothing of economics. Ike did not comprehend the value of a buck.

"My life," he said, "has been spent in the military. If I needed 500 planes or 1,000 tanks, I had no time to let the contracts out to the lowest bidder. All I did was write a requisition."

At a Texas ranch, Lyndon Johnson confided to me that he was spending $30 billions each year trying to win the war in Vietnam. His generals protested to him that they never had enough money, enough men, enough material, to win the conflict.

I dipped a bare foot into his swimming pool. "If we win, Mr. President, what will America get in return?" He shook his head dolefully and began to caw at some wild peacocks sitting on his fence.

Woodrow Wilson had a cerebral stroke in office. For a time, he could neither speak nor think rationally. The affairs of his country were administered by his wife and his physician, Admiral Cary Grayson.

They didn't bother to tell Vice President Thomas Marshall that he should be running the country. But then, what's a Vice President?...

Czech Communists In Party Split?

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — As the Czechoslovak Communist party congress approaches, Western diplomats here say they detect signs of a split within the Prague regime over how to rid the nation of the lingering trauma of 1968.

The party — or at least a faction thereof — has floated what diplomats here regard as a "trial balloon" of reconciliation with the purged members of Alexander Dubcek's 1968 "Prague Spring." However, this was quickly followed by a stiff warning from ultraconservatives that Dubcek's former followers still posed a menace.

"It is a very divided leadership," according to one diplomatic source. "The issues left over from 1968 are the most neuralgic point."

Those in and out of favor are not counting on an ideological truce at the 15th party congress which convenes in April — two months after the pace-setting Soviet congress opening in Moscow on Tuesday.

It will be Czechoslovakia's second "legal" congress since the Soviet-led invasion in August 1968, put an end to Dubcek's "socialism with a human face." A post-invasion congress of Dubcek supporters later was declared null and void.

ceptable and politically very harmful."

There is speculation that President Gustav Husak, who also is the party leader and regarded as a middle-of-the-roader, would like to increase industrial efficiency and overcome political apathy by granting absolution to purged plant managers as a first step toward general rehabilitation.

Husak, himself, was jailed during Stalinist purges and later rehabilitated to become a prominent figure in the "Prague Spring." After the invasion, he threw his support to the Kremlin and became Dubcek's successor.

The nearly 500,000 Czechoslovak party members purged after the 1968 invasion remain outcasts. Few have recanted.

In the wake of charges of abuse and neglect of patients in the state mental facilities the House passed legislation this week (Am. Sub. H.B. 244) setting minimum standards of treatment and legal representation for the 8100 mentally ill housed in state hospitals. H.B. 244 has been dubbed a "Bill of Rights for the Mentally Ill."

The measure tightens procedures for involuntary commitment, and stipulates that a person involuntarily committed to a mental institution by court order could request a jury trial to determine competency.

A person can now be committed to a mental hospital after a hearing before a probate court judge or court-appointed referee.

The bill requires the Department of Mental Health and Retardation to review a patient's case 90 days after commitment and at least every two years thereafter. H.B. 244 also guarantees each patient the right to demand a review of his or her competence.

The right to minimum standards of treatment is specified with the Mental department required to meet federal Medicaid and Medicare standards by April 1, 1977.

Legal representation of involuntarily committed mental patients is guaranteed through the Legal Rights Service, a group of state paid lawyers. The cost of H.B. 244 has been estimated to be $7 million to $11 million per year.

The Senate also passed S.B. 384 allowing honorably discharged, disabled veterans to fish, hunt, and trap in Ohio without a license. State law currently gives this privilege to persons on active duty in the armed forces and residents over 65 years old receiving aid to the aged.

Removal of an archaic limit on the number of women on the board of trustees of a free municipal library was also OK'd by the Senate. Such boards are composed of six members appointed by the mayor, not more than three of which can be of the same political party. Previously, any or all could be men but there could be no more than three women.

Governor Rhodes vetoed two bills and returned them to the House. Am. Sub. H.B. 126, would permit voters who move to vote in their old precinct if they have not re-registered.

The other veto came on Am. H.B. 401, which would increase fees and mileage allowances for court witnesses from $3 per day and five cents per mile to $12 per day and 10 cents per mile. The Governor disapproved mandating a cost of at least $600,000 per year without a corresponding appropriation.

The Governor cited three reasons for his veto. By voting in a precinct where he no longer lives, a voter might be voting on issues and taxes no longer affecting him. H.B. 126 holds the potential of vote fraud through double voting and also encourages voters to put off re-registering in their new precinct.

Action was taken on several other election law bills. The House passed Am. Sub. HB 56 to require registration to vote in every county, allows registration by mail, and increases from two to four years the period in which a person need not vote and retain a registration.

This bill would have unfortunate consequences for Ohio's fine elections system by increasing the chances of voter fraud. Under present law, if a person fails to vote for two years his or her registration lapses. This automatically removes from the voter roles people who have moved or died, thereby preventing false use of their name to vote.

The House approved greater flexibility in Ohio's presidential primary system by passing Am. H.B. 1245 allowing presidential primary candidates to withdraw up to 30 days before the primary election. It also requires removal of the names from the ballot of those who withdraw and of their delegates and alternates, and voids ballots cast for them.

A bill (Am. Sub. H.B. 804) extending control of the Ohio Elections Commission over campaign "dirty tricks" was re-referred to committee by the House. The bill defines and prohibits such acts as serving as a spy for a candidate in another candidate's campaign organization and misrepresenting facts or photos in campaign literature.

Ohio Factories Seek Own Gas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Libbey-Owens-Ford has hired an exploration firm to develop up to six million cubic feet of natural gas per day for its plants in Toledo.

General Motors took over 100 wildcat wells around its Lordstown assembly plant in northeastern Ohio to supply another of its plants across the state in Defiance.

With further curtailments due April 1, industries in Ohio, the most critical state, are turning to self-help programs of drilling their own wells in a search for natural gas to compensate for cuts imposed by utilities. They are not in it for the profit. Generally, they pay more than the utilities charge.

"It's insurance," says Don Postma, a spokesman for General Motors which has seven major divisions and 20 plants in Ohio.

In the past three years, the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio says it has approved 39 applications for industries to drill their own wells, generally through an agreement with wildcaters or through exploration firms. Five more are pending.

Most of the firms are among the giants of industry. In addition to General Motors and Libbey-Owens-Ford, they include the Ford Motor Co., Champion Spark Plug Co., B. F. Goodrich Co., and Otis Elevator.

While there are 1,500 manufacturing firms in the state represented by the Ohio Manufacturers' Association, some are small. The cost of drilling a well to a depth of 5,000 feet, estimated at $115,000, would be discouraging to them.

But for companies like GM, says Postma, "It is not a particularly large investment program."

Ohio consumes 1.1 trillion cubic feet of gas per year, but produces only eight per cent of this, according to Robert Ryan, director of the state's Energy and Resources Development Agency. Ryan says he hopes that production within the state eventually can be doubled.

"We think that would take care of the curtailment," he says.

Industrial firms sign a contract with the utilities for use of their pipeline facilities, paying them a handling charge of 10 cents per thousand cubic feet. Industries must use their allocations from the utilities before they use their own private supply.

Tony Amurgis, director of facilities planning for Columbia Gas of Ohio, says the self-help program is in various stages.

No Wedding Soon For Gov. Brown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Bachelor Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he has dates every weekend but that it "would be stupid" to talk about them.

The 37-year-old Democrat also touched upon some of the aspects of his thinking in an interview published Sunday in the Sacramento Bee.

Asked about his private life, the Jesuit-educated Brown said he goes heavily into intellectual pursuits.

For example, one recent Friday he went to a poetry reading by Pulitzer Prize-winner Gary Snyder and attended a party for a group of Indian dancers; he spent Saturday discussing space colonies with an astronaut, an author, an editor and a space designer; Sunday he walked a beach talking with Ivan Illich, author of "Deschooling Society" and "The Medical Nemesis."

"Some are nebulous," he says. "Last August, September and October, we reduced the curtailment and activities dropped off considerably."

Jerry Jordan, an attorney who represents both industry and producers, says drilling activity has been a boom to farmers and other private land owners.

The land owners get one-eighth interest in any producing well on their property. Jordan estimates this could add up to an average of $30,000 in royalties during the life of the well.

Ohio Senate Report

By OAKLEY C. COLLINS
17th District Senator

In the wake of charges of abuse and neglect of patients in the state mental facilities the House passed legislation this week (Am. Sub. H.B. 244) setting minimum standards of treatment and legal representation for the 8100 mentally ill housed in state hospitals. H.B. 244 has been dubbed a "Bill of Rights for the Mentally Ill."

The measure tightens procedures for involuntary commitment, and stipulates that a person involuntarily committed to a mental institution by court order could request a jury trial to determine competency.

A person can now be committed to a mental hospital after a hearing before a probate court judge or court-appointed referee.

The bill requires the Department of Mental Health and Retardation to review a patient's case 90 days after commitment and at least every two years thereafter. H.B. 244 also guarantees each patient the right to demand a review of his or her competence.

UFO Encounter Shakes Man

By JON HALVORSEN
Associated Press Writer

Travis Walton was cutting trees for $6 an hour in the forests of northern Arizona when he saw the light, a bluish-green ray that he and six witnesses saw knocked him to the ground.

Three months after what he says was an encounter with an unidentified flying object, Walton says it is still difficult to lead a normal life.

At dusk last Nov. 5, as Walton tells the story, he was struck by the ray of light from a UFO in the forest and taken off in the spacecraft by strange creatures. He was missing for five days until, his family said, they found him slumped in a phone booth in Heber, Ariz., pale and shaken.

In the days that followed, reporters from as far away as Australia pursued the Walton story; psychiatrists interviewed him; UFO groups studied the incident; and Navajo County Sheriff Marlin Gillespie, whose men had combed the woods in vain for Walton, confessed he found the case the "most exasperating" in his 18 years with the sheriff's department.

Walton, 23, now unemployed and living alone in a rented house in Snowflake, Ariz., says that he's barely existing financially. He has considered finishing his college education at Northern Arizona University, where he completed one year, or seeking a job in electronics.

But the tall, slender young man says he has kept busy. In recent weeks, he said, he has:

— Been "working with an artist to reproduce some of the things I've seen and writing a book" about the incident, tentatively entitled "The Walton Experience."

— Traveled to Toronto for a "news quiz show" on television and to Hollywood to film a TV pilot called "The Unexplained," in which he was interviewed by Leonard Nimoy, the pointy-eared Mr. Spock of "Star Trek" fame.

— Passed a lie-detector test about the UFO incident.

Walton said he received only expense money for his Hollywood and Toronto trips.

Five of the six young men who were with him Nov. 5 passed a polygraph test about what they saw; the test on the sixth man proved inconclusive.

Mike Rogers, 28, who passed the test, is one of Walton's closest friends. Rogers still insists he saw the UFO. He says he and the others saw it as they drove along a bumpy mountain road about 12 miles south of Heber. Walton jumped out of the moving truck, ran toward the brightly glowing object hovering about 15 feet above the ground in a small clearing. He was knocked down by a ray of bluish-green light, Rogers said.

Rogers, who said he and the other men were still sitting in the truck about 25 yards away, drove off in fright. When the men returned 15 minutes later, there was no trace of Walton or the UFO, Rogers said.

Rogers, a father of four who was the foreman of the woodcutting crew, said in words similar to Walton's: "I would prefer people to believe me, but there's nothing I can do about it if they don't."

Walton's story — he says he remembers only about two hours of the five days he was missing — is that he woke up on a table in a white room and found himself being examined by several creatures with bulging eyes and no fingernails. He said he seized a piece of plastic pipe and swung at the creatures, who backed out of the room.

Walton said he walked down a hallway into another room where he saw a chair with buttons on the side. He began playing with the buttons and saw a large screen filled with stars.

(In the popular TV series "Star Trek," the control room of the "Starship Enterprise" has seats with buttons on their sides and a large viewing screen often filled with stars.)

Next, says Walton, a humanlike creature entered the room, took him by the elbow and led him into another room where three men and a woman were standing, he said.

Walton said the creatures placed him in a chair, and from that point on he could remember nothing until he woke up in the phone booth.

Sheriff Gillespie said he became skeptical when Walton failed to show up for a lie-detector test the sheriff had arranged with the Arizona Department of Public Safety.

"I do think that Walton along with the other six people did see something they thought was a UFO. From that point on, I don't believe anything else occurred," said the sheriff.

Walton says he didn't appear for the polygraph test because his emotional state then would have produced misleading responses. He said the sheriff didn't keep his word that the test would be held "in private, not with the press around."

Earlier this month, Walton did pass a polygraph test in Phoenix, according to George Pfeifer of Ezell & Associates Polygraph Institute, who said he administered it. The test was paid for by Aerial Phenomena Research Organization Inc., a Tucson UFO group, Pfeifer said.

Walton and his brother Duane, 26, who has been Walton's most outspoken supporter since the UFO incident, were tested for two hours each and both passed, Pfeifer said.

Walton denies suggestions that he and other members of the family were UFO buffs before the incident.

"That's been said because of an incident my brother (Duane) had when he was younger," Walton said. Ten or 12 years ago, Duane said he saw an object in the woods and ran from it, Walton said.

The sheriff says both Travis, Duane and their mother, Mrs. Mary Kellet, "have on numerous occasions indicated to me they have been UFO buffs. In fact, Duane and Travis had made a pact between each other that if either of them was picked up by a UFO, he would attempt to return to earth and pick up the other."

Sandusky County Blaze Kills 3

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — A house fire in rural Sandusky County killed three persons Saturday, despite a father's effort to save his wife and child, fire officials said.

Fire fighters had not determined the cause of the blaze that killed Louise Deran, 21; her daughter, Kelly Ann, four months; and Larry J. Schell.

Charles Deran, 21, was treated at a hospital for rib injuries after trying to rescue his family, fire officials said.

A high pressure area in the Mississippi Valley moving toward Ohio today was expected to bring clearing skies from the west.

The National Weather Service forecast sunny skies in all areas of the state by late afternoon. As the skies clear, the wind was to shift to the southwest, bringing warmer weather back to the state. Highs this afternoon were to climb to near 40 north and near 50 along the Ohio River.

High pressure will dominate Ohio's weather tonight and Tuesday as southwest winds continue to pump warm air into the state.

Under clear skies tonight, the thermometer will drop to the low 30s. Abundant sunshine Tuesday will push the highs well above normal, with readings in the mid 50s along the lake shore to the low 60s in the Ohio River valley.

Bankers Attend Crafts Seminar

Calvin Gebhart of the Citizens Bank of Ashville, and Marlene M. Fuller of The Second National Bank of Circleville, recently attended a special seminar on electronic funds transfer in Columbus.

All county banks are members of the Columbus Regional Automated Funds Transfer System (CRAFTS) sponsor of the event and the organization which is working to slow the growth of paper checks through automatic systems.

The seminar included discussion of the newest techniques in automatic funds transfer and the methods of cooperation developing among participating banks.

Direct deposit of payroll (DDP) was a major topic for discussion since many companies as well as the Federal Government are entering the program. DDP permits an employer to deposit the pay directly to an employee's personal bank account without issuing a check. A slip with all vital information such as pay amount and deductions is given to the employee for personal records.

DDP is convenient for the employee since payday no longer means a trip to the bank, the possibility of a lost check or the chance a deposit will not be made.

DDP and other electronic funds transfer programs are necessary to reduce the growing number of paper checks — estimated to be 45 billion nationally by 1980 — which threatens to inundate our banking system with paper.

Deer Creek Lake Runoff Released

Excess runoff, or potential flood water, stored behind federally-operated flood control dams in Ohio's Scioto River basin during the past week of heavy rains, is being gradually released.

The Army Corps of Engineers said the excess water is being released from Delaware Lake on the Olentangy River and from Alum Creek Lake, Deer Creek Lake and Paint Creek Lake, all located on Scioto River tributary streams.

The current releases, according to the Corps, will increase present flows on those particular streams and on the Scioto River proper.

Ohio Gov. Joseph B. Foraker, 1886-1890, had to move in his second term to put down disorders in Brown County. There a band called "White Caps" began to terrorize farmers who refused to listen to demands centered around prices at which crops were to be sold. Foraker acted promptly and the masked raiders stopped their night attacks.

Gun Control Bills Pondered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three gun control bills will be considered this week by a House committee in a last gasp attempt to pass the controversial legislation during the current session.

In the present versions, none of the three bills would deal with handgun registration or the outlawing of the cheap, poorly made pistols, often referred to as "Saturday night specials."

However, Rep. Michael G. Oxley, R-82 Findlay, sponsor of a bill that would require a "cooling off" period before the purchase of a handgun, plans to offer an amendment that would ban the sale of some cheap firearms.

"They're just so replete in major cities," said the former F.B.I. agent. "They're not used for anything except killing some one."

House Judiciary Chairman Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, who has set a Thursday panel vote on all three measures, opposes Oxley's amendment because of the way it defines "Saturday night specials."

The legislative package before the committee would set mandatory 2 to 5 years prison terms for gun-related offenses, permit juveniles to be tried as adults on charges involving a gun, require registration of firearms dealers and require a five-day waiting period before buying a gun.

In addition to Oxley, the sponsors are Reps. Troy Lee James, D-9 Cleveland, and Ike Thompson, D-13 Cleveland.

Oxley's prospective amendment would define a "Saturday night special" as a handgun costing no more than $25, carrying a barrel of three inches or less, a caliber of 32 or less, and capable of being melted at 800 degrees farenheit.

Lehman, a persistent advocate of tough gun control legislation, says Oxley's definition is too narrow to adequately address the problem. "It's cosmetic," he said.

The Cleveland-area attorney cited the price ceiling as the most objectionable feature in the Oxley plan.

"Under no circumstances would I vote in favor of something that set a price because it would just drive the market price above the standard set in the bill," he said.

Lehman estimates that anywhere from a million to 1.5 million of the cheap handguns are already in the hands of Ohioans. And under current law, most lawabiding citizens are entitled to carry handguns, even if the weapons are concealed.

Oxley, who is also an attorney, said he would make no attempt to offer his amendment on the floor if it fails in committee. While Lehman is not known as a strongarm chairman, he is influential and his opposition seriously jeopardizes chances for favorable action on the proposal.

The committee vote Thursday and whatever floor action subsequently results will almost certainly mark the last serious effort to deal with gun control in 1976. In a year when all 99 state representatives are up for re-election, legislation as controversial as gun control is not welcome in most quarters.

More than 20 gun bills have been introduced since the 111th General Assembly began its work Jan. 6, 1975. None has passed.

A high pressure area in the Mississippi Valley moving toward Ohio today was expected to bring clearing skies from the west.

The National Weather Service forecast sunny skies in all areas of the state by late afternoon. As the skies clear, the wind was to shift to the southwest, bringing warmer weather back to the state. Highs this afternoon were to climb to near 40 north and near 50 along the Ohio River.

High pressure will dominate Ohio's weather tonight and Tuesday as southwest winds continue to pump warm air into the state.

Under clear skies tonight, the thermometer will drop to the low 30s. Abundant sunshine Tuesday will push the highs well above normal, with readings in the mid 50s along the lake shore to the low 60s in the Ohio River valley.

Bankers Attend Crafts Seminar

Calvin Gebhart of the Citizens Bank of Ashville, and Marlene M. Fuller of The Second National Bank of Circleville, recently attended a special seminar on electronic funds transfer in Columbus.

All county banks are members of the Columbus Regional Automated Funds Transfer System (CRAFTS) sponsor of the event and the organization which is working to slow the growth of paper checks through automatic systems.

The seminar included discussion of the newest techniques in automatic funds transfer and the methods of cooperation developing among participating banks.

Direct deposit of payroll (DDP) was a major topic for discussion since many companies as well as the Federal Government are entering the program. DDP permits an employer to deposit the pay directly to an employee's personal bank account without issuing a check. A slip with all vital information such as pay amount and deductions is given to the employee for personal records.

DDP is convenient for the employee since payday no longer means a trip to the bank, the possibility of a lost check or the chance a deposit will not be made.

DDP and other electronic funds transfer programs are necessary to reduce the growing number of paper checks — estimated to be 45 billion nationally by 1980 — which threatens to inundate our banking system with paper.

Deer Creek Lake Runoff Released

Excess runoff, or potential flood water, stored behind federally-operated flood control dams in Ohio's Scioto River basin during the past week of heavy rains, is being gradually released.

The Army Corps of Engineers said the excess water is being released from Delaware Lake on the Olentangy River and from Alum Creek Lake, Deer Creek Lake and Paint Creek Lake, all located on Scioto River tributary streams.

The current releases, according to the Corps, will increase present flows on those particular streams and on the Scioto River proper.

Ohio Gov. Joseph B. Foraker, 1886-1890, had to move in his second term to put down disorders in Brown County. There a band called "White Caps" began to terrorize farmers who refused to listen to demands centered around prices at which crops were to be sold. Foraker acted promptly and the masked raiders stopped their night attacks.

Gun Control Bills Pondered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three gun control bills will be considered this week by a House committee in a last gasp attempt to pass the controversial legislation during the current session.

In the present versions, none of the three bills would deal with handgun registration or the outlawing of the cheap, poorly made pistols, often referred to as "Saturday night specials."

However, Rep. Michael G. Oxley, R-82 Findlay, sponsor of a bill that would require a "cooling off" period before the purchase of a handgun, plans to offer an amendment that would ban the sale of some cheap firearms.

"They're just so replete in major cities," said the former F.B.I. agent. "They're not used for anything except killing some one."

House Judiciary Chairman Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, who has set a Thursday panel vote on all three measures, opposes Oxley's amendment because of the way it defines "Saturday night specials."

The legislative package before the committee would set mandatory 2 to 5 years prison terms for gun-related offenses, permit juveniles to be tried as adults on charges involving a gun, require registration of firearms dealers and require a five-day waiting period before buying a gun.

Price Support Rise Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has dropped hints several times lately that basic government price supports on major crops, including wheat and corn, will be raised this year.

But the National Farmers Union, which has been opposed philosophically to many of the Ford administration's farm policies, says that any increase will be small, at least initially.

The issue involves the "price support loan" rates for commodities. These rates determine how much money the government will lend to commodity producers.

In recent years the cash market prices have been much higher than the official loan rates so that there has been relatively small use of the loan program. Many farm groups, including the NFU, want substantial boosts in the loan levels to help offset rising production costs.

Butz has indicated lately that some increase for 1976 is likely but has not officially announced any figures. The present loan for wheat is $1.38 a bushel and corn $1.10 a bushel. The NFU says that increases of 13 cents a bushel for wheat and 15 cents for corn are being rumored but fall far short of being meaningful to farmers.

"Well-informed guesses are that the Ford administration will go along with a very small increase now and, if there is a danger of low prices in late summer or fall, the White House may act in September or thereabouts to raise loan levels again — two months ahead of the presidential election," the NFU said in a newsletter to members.

Another level of support is the "target price" mechanism authorized in the 1973 farm act which covers current crops of wheat, feed grains and cotton. Under it, if the market price of a commodity falls below the specified target level for a certain period of time, government payments are due growers to bridge the gap.

During the first two years of the current law's operation — 1974 and 1975 — the target prices were pegged at $2.05 per bushel for wheat and $1.38 per bushel for corn. The law authorized increases in 1976 and 1977 on the basis of higher production costs.

Although not yet officially announced, the 1976 wheat target price is expected to go up to about $2.27 a bushel and corn to around $1.50 a bushel. Even so, USDA experts right now think that 1976 cash prices will exceed the target levels, meaning no direct payments will be due.

The Flood Control Act enacted by Congress in 1928, following the great Mississippi flood of 1927, appropriated $325 million for levee work in the Mississippi Valley over a 10-year period.

KNIGHT OF THE MONTH — John Lake Jr. (left) receives Knight of the Month Plaque for December from Jim Butler, fraternal chairman of the Father Hannan Council. He received the award for his outstanding work as church activities chairman of the council. He was mainly responsible for distribution of food baskets to the needy during the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons.

Claim Washington Commission Phoney

NEW YORK (AP) — A document advertised as George Washington's copy of his commission in the American Revolutionary army, whose authenticity has been challenged, may be withdrawn from auction, an officer of Sotheby Parke Bernet said Saturday.

Thomas Clarke, a vice president in charge of American books and manuscripts, said the art auction house—the world's largest—would make its decision Monday after seeing more documentation from Richard Ahlstrom of Mentor, Ohio, who consigned the document for sale.

The document had been billed as "the most important discovery reported this bicentennial year." The gallery estimated it would fetch from $40,000 to $60,000.

Ahlstrom, reached by telephone, said he would leave the decision up to the gallery.

Parke Bernet insisted the document was a copy penned on sheepskin by Charles Thomson, secretary of the Continental Congress, for the general to carry.

But Charles Hamilton, one of the world's most highly esteemed experts on autographs, raised questions about it after reading of the scheduled offering. In an interview Saturday, Hamilton said:

"It was not written by Charles Thomson and it is probably not contemporary with the American Revolution.

"Sotheby Parke Bernet have laid their reputation as authorities right on the line by insisting on its authenticity. I think they will have to withdraw it from the sale."

Clarke said withdrawal, if it takes place, would not indicate Parke Bernet had changed its mind about the document, but that the dispute had lowered its sales potential for the moment.

Ahlstrom, treasurer of Cleveland's billion-dollar Diamond Shamrock Corporation, picked up the manuscript at an Ohio antique sale seven years ago for $12.50. He called Hamilton's "one voice in the wilderness considering my own research and the research of others."

But, he added, the charge "does concern me. I'm very disturbed."

Hamilton, displaying authenticated examples of Thomson's handwriting, claimed the Ahlstrom document bore no resemblance and speculated it may have been made at the time of Washington's death. Many such copies were made, he said, for admirers of Washington.

OFFICER — The Tri County Contractors Assn. held its annual meeting at R&N Steele's. Officers elected are: Robert Lisk, president; Joe Deardurff, first vice president; Gary N. Hidy, secretary; Max Guin, second vice president.

But, he added, the charge "does concern me. I'm very disturbed."

Hamilton, displaying authenticated examples of Thomson's handwriting, claimed the Ahlstrom document bore no resemblance and speculated it may have been made at the time of Washington's death. Many such copies were made, he said, for admirers of Washington.

Interior Chief Blunt Talker

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 56, a former two-term congressman, former head of the Small Business Administration and now secretary of the interior, Thomas S. Kleppe still loves nothing more than driving a fast harness horse down a dirt track.

"If I was younger . . ." Kleppe daydreams and his face lights up, momentarily far away from the Washington bureaucracy and his own conflict-torn corner of it.

But Kleppe wastes little time dreaming; instead, he works 12 to 14 hours a day, and longer when he's "on the road," cramming in a daily paddleball session in the department gym and other sports whenever he can.

In personality and style, in fact, Kleppe bears some resemblance to former Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, who was fired by then-President Richard M. Nixon for disagreeing publicly with the President.

Both rose from relatively humble origins to success in business and high rank in government. Both showed a youthful taste for rough sports — Hickel was a boxer, Kleppe a rodeo rider of bucking broncos and steers.

Both like their official decisions prepared by concise staff summaries of the issues, then hammered out in frank meetings, and both have a penchant for blunt talk that can, and has, brought them some heat.

During a recent interview, Kleppe described his style this way:

"I insist, as much as I can, to receive total input on both sides of every question, and ask the people that I work with not to be tongue-tied and never be afraid of recrimination because they happen to say something that disagrees with somebody else, or with me," he said.

"Then, I want to sit down in a meeting . . . and let everybody have a shot. And we've had some horrendous decision meetings."

"And then when that's done, I'm no procrastinator. I like to make a decision. And then everybody takes it, and away we go."

Kleppe also shows little inclination to make speeches just to talk; he prefers to wait until he has something substantial to say.

"We really haven't got much time to spend on platitudes," he snapped. "I don't pull any punches about how I feel or think, even though it might happen to be the wrong audience or the wrong people or the wrong thing to say. I say it."

"I've been criticized for this in times past," Kleppe admitted. "You know: It might have been better, Tom, if you wouldn't of said that. Well, that's the way I feel and there's no use trying to cover it."

Kleppe sees the Interior Department as a natural focus of controversy.

"We've got agencies and bureaus right here that have absolutely opposite constituencies, and they boil together in one place, right there," he said, pointing to his desk.

Indeed, they do: resource development, the drive for more Western coal and offshore oil, is housed in the same department with mine safety, national parks, fish and wildlife protection and trusteeship over Indian reservations.

In his first major policy pronouncements since taking office last Oct. 17, Kleppe has tried to balance those competing interests without slowing down resource development.

He has announced policies to require land reclamation after strip mining, in order to cut short the uncertainty over twice-vetoed strip mine legislation and get new mining under way.

He has made it clear he would open new offshore areas to oil leasing — including the Gulf of Alaska, despite opposition from environmental agencies and state governors — but may withhold leasing of the most environmentally hazardous tracts.

Kleppe has continued the administration's offer of "self-determination" to Indian tribes, but reassured them that federal financial and program support would not be withdrawn.

He seems to thrive on the challenge, and his "relaxation" comes from a change of pressures, rather than tranquility and rest — that is, from active sports.

"I will reschedule my work here around five o'clock in the afternoon to do down and play paddleball in our gym," Kleppe said. "And I like to play tennis. I only get to do that about once a week . . . In the summertime I always try to play golf on the weekend."

"And then, I'm going to take off a couple of days in March. I'm going down to Florida and I'm going to train some harness horses with a friend of mine down there for a couple of mornings and then we play golf in the afternoon, and that's a great break."

"I still break horses," Kleppe continued. "I used to ride the rodeo circuit and I've got some quarter horses in Tennessee, and I just had a 2½-year-old filly that I broke at Christmas time."

"Well, naturally, I only got her green-broke because I was only there for a week . . . But I still like to drive harness horses more than anything."

Had he ever driven them in races? The question started Kleppe laughing at himself.

"No!" he chuckled. "But, I got the bug! If I was younger, I tell you — oh, I could be a harness-horse driver . . . You can't imagine the thrill of sitting behind one of those pacers or trotters and going that last quarter in 30 seconds. I'm telling you, it's something out of this world."

Kleppe admitted he had little interest in such cultural activities as the symphony, opera, theater, art and literature, although he enjoys a good Broadway musical.

Nor does he care much for winter sports.

"Baseball is my game," he recalled. "I turned down a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals way back when I came out of the service . . . And I didn't do bad at bowling. I ran pretty close to 200 averages in tournaments and I got a 300 (perfect) game once in interleague competition."

Kleppe, born July 1, 1919, in Kintyre, N.D., got his first job at 17, helping out in his father's grain elevator.

He dropped out of State Teachers College after one year, but by the age of 21, he was managing a small bank.

Kleppe served in the Army from 1942 to 1946, emerging as a warrant officer, then joined the Gold Seal Co., a Bismarck, N.D., manufacturer of bleachers and waxed.

At the age of 37, Kleppe became president of the company, a position he held until 1964. Meanwhile, he served four years as mayor of Bismarck. In 1964, Kleppe was the Republican candidate for the Senate from North Dakota, but he lost and instead joined the Minneapolis, Minn., investment banking firm of Dain, Kalman and Quail.

In 1966, he tried politics again, and this time was elected to the House of Representatives. He served two terms, tried again for the Senate in 1970, and again lost.

But he came to Washington anyway, as Nixon's appointee in 1971 to head the Small Business Administration, the post he held when President Ford selected him for the Interior Department.

During Kleppe's tenure, there, the Small Business Administration was tarred with a fund scandal in its Richmond, Va., office; was investigated by the Civil Service Commission for allegedly political personnel decisions; and was brought under investigation by the General Accounting Office. But none of the stains rubbed off on Kleppe.

Since 1971 his financial holdings, then estimated at $3.5 million, have been in a blind trust; Kleppe reopened his finances to the Senate Interior Committee during his confirmation hearings last October and agreed to dispose of interests in natural resource companies.

Environment organizations were suspicious of Kleppe's lack of experience in resource management but, by the same token, could find little in his record to criticize.

When he was nominated to this key resource post at interior, Kleppe said, "the North Dakota farm boy in me says there is a lot of land to protect, and protecting it is all important . . . At the same time, if succeeding generations are to enjoy other aspects of that quality of life, we will need access to minerals and other natural resources . . ."

Bosoms Take Lead In Male Mail Poll

DEAR READERS: I asked my readers to please send me a postcard telling me what they noticed first about the opposite sex. The response was almost equally divided between men and women, with slightly more men responding than women.

First, the responses from the men: The bosoms were out in front by a wide margin! However, many men who said that the first thing they noticed about a woman was her bosom added that the size of a woman's bust isn't important.

An Austin, Tex., man wrote, "I married 'Miss Knockers of 1941,' and our marriage was a disaster. Two children and four-years later we were divorced. We just never communicated."

A Baltimore bosom-watcher wrote that he has become an expert on guessing whether a woman's breast are "real," padded or enlarged by silicone implants. And anything phony turns him off.

From Seattle: "I'm only 28-not old enough to be considered a dirty old man-but I have to admit that my eyes go right to a girl's bosom first. If she's not wearing a bra, I figure she's probably liberated."

"But liberated women are not necessarily pushovers. In fact, I've found that most liberated women are just the opposite. They refuse to be used as sex objects, and unless they're sure that you really care for them as a 'person,' it's no go."

From Milwaukee: "Big breasts have always been No. 1 with me," signed, "Seventy-nine and still looking!"

After the bosom-watchers, the next highest percentage of men voted for a woman's "figure," which included not only the way she was built but also other parts of the anatomy.

Connecticut men are "leg men," my mail disclosed. But most "fanny-fanciers" live in California. One

Set Repair Of Pumps

CINCINNATI (AP) — Repairs crews are expected to have at least one of four 70-million ton water pumps back in operation today after the city's water supply was threatened when the pumps were flooded.

Half of the city's water reserves were used up since the pumping station was flooded Thursday with river water, causing damage estimated at more than $50,000.

Charles Bolton, water works superintendent, said "nothing like this has happened since 1937"—when major floods hit—and added that the accident caught his department off guard.

The new 23.5-ton pumps were inundated in 65 feet of water when a faulty seal broke, allowing rising river water to flood the area.

Repair crews have been working around the clock to restore the pumps to operation.

Butz Hints He'd Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has dropped a hint that he may be available to remain at his $60,000-a-year Cabinet post if President Ford is elected next fall.

About a year ago Butz had planned to retire at mid year but was asked by Ford to remain on the job at least through the 1976 election. Later, on several occasions, Butz told reporters he planned to quit after the election even if Ford wins a term in the White House.

But this week, at an agricultural marketing conference here, Butz was asked if he felt secure enough about the administration's farm policy to retire at the end of this year or if he would stay.

"I'd have to be invited, obviously," Butz said. "You don't invite yourself to stay on in a new Cabinet. I'd have to face that when I came to it."

As he has previously, Butz then expressed concern that the administration's policy of all-out farm production, exports and a market-oriented program generally has not really caught on with some people, including influential members of Congress.

Spread Word On Taxes, Vanik Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — More should be done to spread the word that a special new tax benefit is available for poor working families, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, says.

Vanik, head of the House Ways and Means investigating subcommittee, said he was "appalled to learn from recent (subcommittee) staff visits in the field that the local Social Security, welfare, food stamp, veterans and unemployment offices are not publicizing the (tax) credit as their officials promised us in Washington."

In a statement issued Saturday, Vanik added: "If we are to reach the millions of low-income taxpayers who are entitled to this valuable tax benefit this year, it will require a concerted and unified effort" to locate all those eligible for it.

In addition, Vanik said, Internal Revenue Service figures indicate that of 813,000 returns processed by the end of last month, 5 per cent did not claim this credit for which these taxpayers appeared to be eligible.

IRS is sending notices of the availability of the credit to taxpayers who filed tax returns and appear eligible but have not claimed it, Vanik said. From a sample of such notices, he added, IRS service centers called taxpayers and found 83 per cent of them actually were entitled to the credit.

Under the new tax law, workers supporting children and making less than $8,000 last year in wages and self-employment earnings can claim special new financial aid known as an earned-income credit. It is 10 per cent of such earnings, with a maximum $400 credit.

The amount of earnings eligible for the credit is reduced dollar-for-dollar as the worker's adjusted gross income rises above $4,000, so that this credit is phased out entirely for persons making more than $8,000.

An early note of warning on pollution in Ohio was sounded by state geologist Edward Orton in the late 1800s when he wrote of "increasing contamination of our rivers... This contamination results from the base use to which we put these streams...in making them the sole receptacles of all the sewage and manufacturing wastes that are removed from cities and towns."

CHS Wins 6th Straight SCOL Mat Title

Circleville maintained its dominance of the South Central Ohio League for the sixth consecutive year by winning the SCOL wrestling crown over four other teams at Miami Trace Saturday. Coach Brent Bell's team scored 101½ points for first place, and Wilmington was second with 70½.

Also finishing was Madison Plains, 58; Miami Trace, 55½; Hillsboro, 16½. Circleville wrestlers gave warning that they really came to wrestle when Dan DeFrank in the first match of the day pinned his opponent in 19 seconds, followed by Randy Speakman's 1:40 second pin and Jerry Strawser's 30 second pin in the first round.

The Tiger team earned five firsts, four second, and one third place in the tournament. Champions in their respective weight classes were: Mike Hamilton, 105; Randy Speakman, 112; Brett Christy, 132; John Payne, 167; and Jerry Strawser, 185.

"It went about the way I hoped it would go," Circleville Coach Brent Bell commented. "We had places where we gained championships that I didn't expect.

"I thought we wrestled well all the way down the line. All of our kids did a good job. We kept coming back in our matches even when down by five or ten points," the Tiger mentor said.

"I was very pleased in the way Circleville's wrestlers took the pressure to all their opponents and constantly worked to score points no matter whether they were ahead or behind. I thought Mike Hamilton wrestled very well in defeating three very good opponents. With great desire, Randy Speakman came back

Junior Tigers Both Win In Cage Tourney

Circleville's seventh and eighth grade cage teams came up with big wins over Washington Court House in the Greenfield Junior High Tournament Saturday.

Coach Ron Malone's seventh graders defeated the Blue Lions 40-33. The little Tigers led by quarter scores of 5-4, 22-11, and 32-15.

Bob Milstead led Circleville with 15 points, Dallas Hettinger hooped seven, Rod Bumgarner netted four, Todd Huffer and Brad Landis canned three apiece, Brad Fisher, Brian Davis, Greg Greenlee and Tony Zimmerman each tallied two.

Carson led Washington C. H. with 15. Coach Ty Ankrom's eighth grade team defeated the Blue Lions 34-28. His team led 12-4, 18-8 and 28-18.

Anthony Smith canned 14 for Circleville, Mark Morrison sank 10, Danny Martin fired seven and Mike Harrison scored three. Keith Lewis pulled down seven rebounds and did a good defensive job. Brad Allen, Brad Willoughby and Jeff Lammam came off the bench and all did a good job.

Lee led the Blue Lions with 10 points. Coach Ankrom called it a "team victory as we previously had lost twice to Washington C. H."

Both teams will now play in the semi-finals at Greenfield Thursday with the seventh grade going at 6:30 and the eighth grade squad at 8 p.m.

from being down 0-3 to win in the final period.

"Brett Christy won his third straight championship by defeating Holland of Madison Plains who was 17-2 before the meet. John Payne simply crushed both his opponents and Jerry Strawser simply overwhelmed all three of his opponents to win his individual championship," Bell said.

"Tim Housh, Bill Mogan, Jeff Lackey and Tom Marshall also wrestled well in gaining seconds, as did Dan DeFrank in winning third.

Eric Berlin wrestled well narrowly losing 3-4 to Kurt Klontz of Miami Trace who won the 145 pound class," Bell commented.

Circleville's next competition will be at the sectionals at Wattersen High School Friday and Saturday.

TAKEDOWN — Circleville's Jerry Strawser manages to contain an ever struggling Walker of Wilmington in his final match and eventually pinned him to win the 185 pound wrestling championship. The big Tiger pinned two and decisioned another in taking the title.

Tigers Conquer Teays Valley In Season Finale, 79-58

ON A DRIVE — Circleville's George Moore drives for a bucket while teammates Biff Bumgarner (33) and Brent Mancini (15) look on. Identifiable Vikings in the picture are Jeff Voss (20) and Mike Johnson (40). Circleville went on to defeat Teays Valley, 79-58.

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

George Moore and Biff Bumgarner put on fine offensive and defensive performances to lead the Circleville Tigers to a 79-58 win over Teays Valley Saturday night on the Vikings' floor to wrap up the regulation season for both teams.

Moore had eight from the floor and seven from the foul line for 23 points. He also pulled down 12 rebounds and turned in a fine defensive job.

Bumgarner hit five from the field and nine from the charity stripe for 19 points and hauled in 11 missed shots as well as playing his usual aggressive floor game.

Brent Mancini added 12 to the Tiger total, Tom Taylor netted six, Rusty Holbrook and Mike McCoy both tallied five, Warren Yamarick hit three while Eric Pontius, Jeff Williams and Frank Merrill all had two.

Jeff Cauger was the big man for the Vikings with 13 points, Jeff Voss added nine, Tim Tosca and Mike Johnson each had eight, Dave Schiff hooped six, Terry Trego, Charles Morrison and Ranie Wornhas all tallied four and Rusty Rathburn had two.

Circleville was 28 of 52 from the field for 56 per cent and converted 23 of 39 from the free throw line.

Teays Valley shot 22 of 51 from the hardwood for 41 per cent and netted 14 of 19 from the charity stripe.

The Tigers dominated the boards, 43-29, with Moore and Bumgarner showing the way while Jeff Cauger was tops for the Vikings.

In the turnover department Circleville committed 20 while the Vikings misplayed the ball 22 times.

It appeared to be Circleville's game from the outset and despite a game effort and the never say die attitude of the Vikings, the Blue and Gold cagers trailed 22-8 at the end of the first quarter, were behind 42-21 at halftime and were on the short end of a 61-33 count at the third quarter buzzer.

The Tigers held a 10-6 lead midway through the first period but came up 12 straight points and break the ball game wide open.

All the Tigers began to hit in the second canto and with 1:19 to go they pulled out to a 42-17 edge.

The third period was a repeat of the second canto as the Tigers continued to roll and the Vikings refused to quit.

Circleville went to the bench in the final quarter and everyone saw action as the period was a fairly even battle.

"Our young men played very well and now we must get ready for Friday night when we open sectional play," Circleville coach Jim Bailey commented.

The Tigers finished the season with a 17-1 record and will meet Lakewood 9 p.m. Friday in the Sectional Tournament at Grove City.

Teays Valley ended with an 8-10 mark and will meet London 7 p.m. Friday at Westland in the Sectional Tournament.

Muirfield To Have Unique Trophy

COLUMBUS — The main lounge in the new clubhouse at the Muirfield Village Golf Club will have one of the most unique and unusual trophies in the sports world.

The Club and the upcoming Memorial Tournament, May 24-30, have been called the fulfillment of a ten year Jack Nicklaus dream. The same precision and exactness with which Nicklaus plays golf, are also apparent in the attention to details so evident in the tournament planning. This is borne out once again with news of the Memorial Trophy, certainly something new and different where sports awards are concerned. Set apart from the traditional gold and silver hardware that is almost always emblematic of a championship, the Memorial Trophy will stand alone as one of a kind.

Designed and crafted by Leonard Delmas of San Francisco, renowned for his artistry and creativity with fine jewelry, the predominant feature of the award will be a majestic piece of absolutely unblemished Swedish crystal, standing 22 inches high and suspended on solid handwrought sterling silver and 14 karat gold, with cutout letters spelling "Memorial Tournament". This is set into a large circle to the purest oriental jade from China. Hand rubbed walnut serves as the base for the trophy, with raised sterling plaques and individual cutouts of the Memorial crest. This work of art will stand in a glass case, under special lighting, and will be immediately visible upon entering the new clubhouse at Muirfield Village.

According to Delmas, "This is probably the most unusual piece we have ever created. The materials come from all over the world, just like the players will to compete. So, it is international in character, like the tournament itself. Tigers Conquer Teays Valley In Season Finale, 79-58

ON A DRIVE — Circleville's George Moore drives for a bucket while teammates Biff Bumgarner (33) and Brent Mancini (15) look on. Identifiable Vikings in the picture are Jeff Voss (20) and Mike Johnson (40). Circleville went on to defeat Teays Valley, 79-58.

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

George Moore and Biff Bumgarner put on fine offensive and defensive performances to lead the Circleville Tigers to a 79-58 win over Teays Valley Saturday night on the Vikings' floor to wrap up the regulation season for both teams.

Moore had eight from the floor and seven from the foul line for 23 points. He also pulled down 12 rebounds and turned in a fine defensive job.

Bumgarner hit five from the field and nine from the charity stripe for 19 points and hauled in 11 missed shots as well as playing his usual aggressive floor game.

Brent Mancini added 12 to the Tiger total, Tom Taylor netted six, Rusty Holbrook and Mike McCoy both tallied five, Warren Yamarick hit three while Eric Pontius, Jeff Williams and Frank Merrill all had two.

Jeff Cauger was the big man for the Vikings with 13 points, Jeff Voss added nine, Tim Tosca and Mike Johnson each had eight, Dave Schiff hooped six, Terry Trego, Charles Morrison and Ranie Wornhas all tallied four and Rusty Rathburn had two.

Circleville was 28 of 52 from the field

for 56 per cent and converted 23 of 39 from the free throw line.

Teays Valley shot 22 of 51 from the hardwood for 41 per cent and netted 14 of 19 from the charity stripe.

The Tigers dominated the boards, 43-29, with Moore and Bumgarner showing the way while Jeff Cauger was tops for the Vikings.

In the turnover department Circleville committed 20 while the Vikings misplayed the ball 22 times.

It appeared to be Circleville's game from the outset and despite a game effort and the never say die attitude of the Vikings, the Blue and Gold cagers trailed 22-8 at the end of the first quarter, were behind 42-21 at halftime and were on the short end of a 61-33 count at the third quarter buzzer.

The Tigers held a 10-6 lead midway through the first period but came up 12 straight points and break the ball game wide open.

All the Tigers began to hit in the second canto and with 1:19 to go they pulled out to a 42-17 edge.

The third period was a repeat of the second canto as the Tigers continued to roll and the Vikings refused to quit.

Circleville went to the bench in the final quarter and everyone saw action

as the period was a fairly even battle.

"Our young men played very well and now we must get ready for Friday night when we open sectional play," Circleville coach Jim Bailey commented.

The Tigers finished the season with a 17-1 record and will meet Lakewood 9 p.m. Friday in the Sectional Tournament at Grove City.

Teays Valley ended with an 8-10 mark and will meet London 7 p.m. Friday at Westland in the Sectional Tournament.

Muirfield To Have Unique Trophy

COLUMBUS — The main lounge in the new clubhouse at the Muirfield Village Golf Club will have one of the most unique and unusual trophies in the sports world.

The Club and the upcoming Memorial Tournament, May 24-30, have been called the fulfillment of a ten year Jack Nicklaus dream. The same precision and exactness with which Nicklaus plays golf, are also apparent in the attention to details so evident in the tournament planning. This is borne out once again with news of the Memorial Trophy, certainly something new and different where sports awards are concerned. Set apart from the traditional gold and silver hardware that is almost always emblematic of a championship, the Memorial Trophy will stand alone as one of a kind.

Designed and crafted by Leonard Delmas of San Francisco, renowned for his artistry and creativity with fine jewelry, the predominant feature of the award will be a majestic piece of absolutely unblemished Swedish crystal, standing 22 inches high and suspended on solid handwrought sterling silver and 14 karat gold, with cutout letters spelling "Memorial Tournament". This is set into a large circle of the purest oriental jade from China. Hand rubbed walnut serves as the base for the trophy, with raised sterling plaques and individual cutouts of the Memorial crest. This work of art will stand in a glass case, under special lighting, and will be immediately visible upon entering the new clubhouse at Muirfield Village.

According to Delmas, "This is probably the most unusual piece we have ever created. The materials come from all over the world, just like the players will to compete. So, it is international in character, like the tournament itself. It took more than two years to assemble all the parts and the better part of this year to blend them together in a way which is befitting this new tournament and the goals which Jack has set for it."

Mustangs Upend Zane Trace In Finale

Bowling At A Glance

By TOM SPRING
Herald Sports Writer

The Westfall Mustangs won its greatest victory of the year Saturday night, appropriately enough, on the last game of the regular season, upsetting visiting second-place Zane Trace 68-66. They secured third place and destroyed Trace's hopes of coping a share of the Scioto Valley Conference cage crown.

For the Mustangs, the name of the game was defense, despite 13 lead changes and 11 ties during the game.

The Mustangs had to hold down the high scoring opponents and they came through, playing virtually error-free in the second half, using a fourth quarter zone change, a stall, and some key free throw shooting in the final seconds by senior Terry Hanson.

The two teams put man-to-man defenses together in the first quarter that thwarted each other's offense. Bill Evans started it for the Mustangs with a free throw at 7:10. Two Hanson free throws with three minutes left gave Westfall a 9-6 lead but Zane Trace came back with four and the first quarter ended in a tie, 11-11.

In the second period, Westfall went ahead by four at 7:31 and later led 27-17 at 3:30 on the shooting of Chris Riddle, Kevin Reid and Mack Dick and the Mustangs had a chance to put them away.

But, Trace came back, putting 12 of the next 14 markers on the scoreboard, largely on drives by French. Jeff Karshner and Bill Hamman countered with buckets to tie it up at the first-half buzzer, 33-33.

Both teams continued with the man-to-man after half-time, and the results were nearly the same. John Schleich, and John Long sank some fine shots from outside and Dick drove in for buckets as they countered the scoring of French and Delbert Tatman.

Westfall never led in the frame, but never trailed by more than four and Bill Hamman's two corner shots in the final minute tied it 50-50.

Charlie Thurston hit a corner shot at the buzzer and Zane Trace led by two 52-50.

Karshner began the final canto with a three-point-play at 7:31 to lead 53-52. The Mustangs called time out twice and then switched to a zone to change the tempo and throw the opponents off.

Westfall came up with several steals and Hanson and Reid began putting up two-pointers from underneath. Karshner and Riddle hit free throws and Riddle's shot at 2:02 gave the Mustangs a 64-57 lead.

At this point Westfall began a prolonged stall and the Pioneers had to foul to get the ball back. Hanson sank four free throws in a row and Westfall led 68-62 at 0:18.

Mike Wright and Tatman sank two as the seconds ticked away but fell one bucket short and the Mustangs won before a capacity crowd.

Westfall used well-balanced scoring to gain the win. Kevin Reid led the team with 12, Riddle hooped 11, Hanson (six for six at the line) and Hamman each netted 10, Karshner and Dick each tallied nine, John Long hit two and Bill Evans added a free throw.

Mike Wright led Zane Trace with 19, French hit 16, Delbert Tatman scored 15, Charlie Thurston and Britton each canned six and Mallow hooped four.

The Mustangs were 28 of 60 from the field for a 46 per cent average. They netted 12 of 28 from the free throw line for 42.1 per cent.

Zane Trace connected on 21 of 58 field goal attempts for a 36 per cent average, and hooped 24 of 32 charity tosses for 75.0 per cent.

Westfall pulled down 40 rebounds while their opponents grabbed 33. Reid had 11, Riddle 10, for the Mustangs.

The Pioneers had 16 turnovers while the local lads had only 14.

Westfall's coach, Mike Eckle, said afterwards, "This was the most emotional game we've ever been through. We were very keyed up and "We are going to lose eight super kids," Eckle said. All got in and all eight seniors did a heckuva job. Bill Hamman ran our offense with lots of leadership. "Classy" Hanson came in with super defense and some key free throws. Chris Riddle and Mack Dick both had good games."

"Bill Evans did a good defensive job until he got in foul trouble, and John Schleich and junior John Long came in and picked us up on offense. Jeff Karshner and Kevin Reid played well off the boards. Reid showed some great moves and came up with only 12, but 12 big points," the Mustang mentor said.

Mustangs Upend Zane Trace In Finale

Bowling At A Glance

By TOM SPRING
Herald Sports Writer

The Westfall Mustangs won its greatest victory of the year Saturday night, appropriately enough, on the last game of the regular season, upsetting visiting second-place Zane Trace 68-66. They secured third place and destroyed Trace's hopes of coping a share of the Scioto Valley Conference cage crown.

For the Mustangs, the name of the game was defense, despite 13 lead changes and 11 ties during the game.

The Mustangs had to hold down the high scoring opponents and they came through, playing virtually error-free in the second half, using a fourth quarter zone change, a stall, and some key free throw shooting in the final seconds by senior Terry Hanson.

The two teams put man-to-man defenses together in the first quarter that thwarted each other's offense. Bill Evans started it for the Mustangs with a free throw at 7:10. Two Hanson free throws with three minutes left gave Westfall a 9-6 lead but Zane Trace came back with four and the first quarter ended in a tie, 11-11.

In the second period, Westfall went ahead by four at 7:31 and later led 27-17 at 3:30 on the shooting of Chris Riddle, Kevin Reid and Mack Dick and the Mustangs had a chance to put them away.

But, Trace came back, putting 12 of the next 14 markers on the scoreboard, largely on drives by French. Jeff Karshner and Bill Hamman countered with buckets to tie it up at the first-half buzzer, 33-33.

Both teams continued with the man-to-man after half-time, and the results were nearly the same. John Schleich, and John Long sank some fine shots from outside and Dick drove in for buckets as they countered the scoring of French and Delbert Tatman.

Westfall never led in the frame, but never trailed by more than four and Bill Hamman's two corner shots in the final minute tied it 50-50.

Charlie Thurston hit a corner shot at the buzzer and Zane Trace led by two 52-50.

Karshner began the final canto with a three-point-play at 7:31 to lead 53-52. The Mustangs called time out twice and then switched to a zone to change the tempo and throw the opponents off.

Westfall came up with several steals and Hanson and Reid began putting up two-pointers from underneath. Karshner and Riddle hit free throws and Riddle's shot at 2:02 gave the Mustangs a 64-57 lead.

At this point Westfall began a prolonged stall and the Pioneers had to foul to get the ball back. Hanson sank four free throws in a row and Westfall led 68-62 at 0:18.

Mike Wright and Tatman sank two as the seconds ticked away but fell one bucket short and the Mustangs won before a capacity crowd.

Westfall used well-balanced scoring to gain the win. Kevin Reid led the team with 12, Riddle hooped 11, Hanson (six for six at the line) and Hamman each netted 10, Karshner and Dick each tallied nine, John Long hit two and Bill Evans added a free throw.

Mike Wright led Zane Trace with 19, French hit 16, Delbert Tatman scored 15, Charlie Thurston and Britton each canned six and Mallow hooped four.

The Mustangs were 28 of 60 from the field for a 46 per cent average. They netted 12 of 28 from the free throw line for 42.1 per cent.

Zane Trace connected on 21 of 58 field goal attempts for a 36 per cent average, and hooped 24 of 32 charity tosses for 75.0 per cent.

Westfall pulled down 40 rebounds while their opponents grabbed 33. Reid had 11, Riddle 10, for the Mustangs.

The Pioneers had 16 turnovers while the local lads had only 14.

Westfall's coach, Mike Eckle, said afterwards, "This was the most emotional game we've ever been through. We were very keyed up and

Junior TV Cagers Lose In Tourney

Teays Valley's eighth grade cage squad rallied late, but lost a close game to Bexley 40-38 at the Bexley Tournament Friday.

The Vikings trailed by quarter scores of 12-5, 22-17 and 34-29.

Shawn Blue paced Teays Valley with 18 points. John Sanders added 10, Scott Bartholomew canned four, Bill Pettibone, Mike Herron and Norm Dresbach each hit two.

Hanna fired 18 and Doermann sank 17 to lead Bexley.

The Vikings close the season with a 9-7 record.

OC Draw Leaves 2 Teams Seeded

CLEVELAND (AP) — Top seeds Ohio Northern and Wittenberg will sit out opening round action Feb. 27 in the Ohio Conference college basketball tournament, but the draw showed 12 other teams their first opponents.

In the northern division, Heidelberg will play host to Baldwin-Wallace, Wooster to Oberlin and Kenyon to Mount Union.

In the southern division, Ohio Wesleyan will play at Otterbein, Marietta at Muskingum and Denison at Capital.

played a good ballgame."

"We are going to lose eight super kids," Eckle said. All got in and all eight seniors did a heckuva job. Bill Hamman ran our offense with lots of leadership. "Classy" Hanson came in with super defense and some key free throws. Chris Riddle and Mack Dick both had good games."

"Bill Evans did a good defensive job until he got in foul trouble, and John Schleich and junior John Long came in and picked us up on offense. Jeff Karshner and Kevin Reid played well off the boards. Reid showed some great moves and came up with only 12, but 12 big points," the Mustang mentor said.

The Mustangs also won the reserve game in another close contest. Coach Dennis Karshner's team led 14-12, 22-21, 32-28 and won 46-39.

Mike Hurley led the Mustangs with 12, Chuck Mettler canned 10, Dave Clem and Jeff Mowery each rimmed six, Dale Ruoff, Mike Weidinger and Randy Hartzell all sank four apiece.

Westfall closes the season with a 12-6 record. They begin tournament play against Logan Elm 6 p.m. Friday at Grove City.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FORTUESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A fine period for setting new records, aiming at new goals. Express yourself lucidly, gently, but definitely. Leave no room for misunderstandings or doubts.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Influences mostly favorable. Do not let pressures or tensions hamper steady, well-tempered action. Especially favored: job and financial affairs.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Persons with whom you deal will not all feel up to par; some are working under strain. Offer a helpful word: it will help. Expend efforts effectively.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Some interference with your plans indicated, but take it in stride. What you do with your own talents is what counts. Use THEM well, then note where other puzzle pieces fit.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Increasing advantages indicated, but some may be hidden, so you will have to ferret them out for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): There may be some problem areas in teaching, writing and (or) research, but matters can be worked out if you are as calm and meticulous as you usually are.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Favorable aspects stimulate your creative abilities and your imagination, but don't let the latter run "wild." Maintain a down-to-earth attitude even as your ambitions soar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Endeavors of the needed. Be especially careful with figures, accounts, estimates, handling the affairs of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Endeavors of the past should bring reward now. Keep up the good work! Handle all obligations in your able fashion, your normal way. No doubt about possibilities!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Balance earnings against expenditures; also study where tactics, moves should be altered, stepped up or retarded. Heed sound advice; shun needless discussion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): With your keenness now for detecting flaws and your good humor, you can solve practically all of the "little" quandaries waiting to trip the unthinking.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Believe in yourself and in the soundness of your most worthwhile endeavors. Curb a tendency to downgrade yourself and your efforts.

YOU BORN TODAY are, like most Pisceans, highly intuitive, imaginative and endowed with a remarkable memory. Unlike most others born under your Sign, however you are inclined to be vacillating in your purposes and activities, with the result that your success in life may be more or less an up-and-down affair. You can be "at the top of the world" one day, in the depths the next. But you can conquer this state of affairs by determining on a program of self-mastery and self-discipline. You have many talents and your charming personality draws others to you almost magnetically. It would be a shame to waste such precious gifts! Fields in which you could particularly excel: music, sculpture and writing. You would make an out-

NEW YORK (AP) — On March 26, NBC will air a 90-minute music special sponsored by Bell Telephone. And composer Marvin Hamlisch will be there to say hello and play three of his better-known compositions. It's kind of a homecoming for the tall, 31-year-old New Yorker, who labored as a rehearsal pianist on "Bell Telephone Hour" shows a decade ago while still a music student at Queens College and Juilliard.

Hamlisch, who says he earned $12 an hour then, earns a bit more these days, as befits a man who copped three Oscars in 1974 for his music work in two movies, "The Sting" and "The Way We Were."

But he hasn't gone Hollywood. He's remained New York. He lives in a Park Avenue bachelor pad, furnished for comfort, no show, with an old upright piano handy for his well-paid tussles with the muse.

His movie work began when he was 20. Back then, had he not accepted a job one night playing piano at a party here, he might still be playing rehearsal and off-Broadway gigs and hoping for the big break.

"I told the lady who called I don't play parties," he recalled with a grin. "Out of curiosity, I said, 'Who's it for?' She said Sam Spiegel (a visiting movie producer). I said I'd be there in 10 minutes."

That evening, he played some of his music for the producer and was hired to write the music for a film, "The Swimmer." It sank in the reviews, but Hamlisch says his music got great notices.

"The next thing I knew, I went directly into 'April Fools' and then Woody Allen's 'Take the Money and Run,'" he said. "I was almost saying after a while, 'Wait a minute. I gotta finish college.'"

He did that, and also wrote the music for nine more movies in a row. Unlike most young composers, he didn't have to go through the usual door-knocking period, thanks to the reviews he got for "The Swimmer" and a hard-working agent, the late Peter Faith.

"Pete basically took care of everything," Hamlisch said. "Of course occasionally I'd have to go to a producer and he'd have to talk to me, see if he liked my style, liked me, that sort of thing."

"Because let's face it, if you have a $3 million, $4 million dollar project, if you're young they get very nervous."

In the best Hollywood tradition, he was swamped with lucrative film offers after The Night of the Three Oscars. In the worst Hollywood tradition, he returned to the East Coast to pursue a Broadway project.

"Everyone was saying, 'My God, now you can do all these movies,'" he said. "But a friend of mine, Michael Bennett, wanted me to listen to some tapes of a show he had in mind."

Whereupon Hamlisch wound up writing the music for a show called "Chorus Line," which proved considerably more successful than two TV series for which he wrote the theme, "Beacon Hill" and "Hot L. Baltimore."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A fine period for setting new records, aiming at new goals. Express yourself lucidly, gently, but definitely. Leave no room for misunderstandings or doubts.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Influences mostly favorable. Do not let pressures or tensions hamper steady, well-tempered action. Especially favored: job and financial affairs.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Persons with whom you deal will not all feel up to par; some are working under strain. Offer a helpful word: it will help. Expend efforts effectively.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Some interference with your plans indicated, but take it in stride. What you do with your own talents is what counts. Use THEM well, then note where other puzzle pieces fit.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Increasing advantages indicated, but some may be hidden, so you will have to ferret them out for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): There may be some problem areas in teaching, writing and (or) research, but matters can be worked out if you are as calm and meticulous as you usually are.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Favorable aspects stimulate your creative abilities and your imagination, but don't let the latter run "wild." Maintain a down-to-earth attitude even as your ambitions soar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Endeavors of the needed. Be especially careful with figures, accounts, estimates, handling the affairs of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Endeavors of the past should bring reward now. Keep up the good work! Handle all obligations in your able fashion, your normal way. No doubt about possibilities!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Balance earnings against expenditures; also study where tactics, moves should be altered, stepped up or retarded. Heed sound advice; shun needless discussion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): With your keenness now for detecting flaws and your good humor, you can solve practically all of the "little" quandaries waiting to trip the unthinking.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Believe in yourself and in the soundness of your most worthwhile endeavors. Curb a tendency to downgrade yourself and your efforts.

YOU BORN TODAY are, like most Pisceans, highly intuitive, imaginative and endowed with a remarkable memory. Unlike most others born under your Sign, however you are inclined to be vacillating in your purposes and activities, with the result that your success in life may be more or less an up-and-down affair. You can be "at the top of the world" one day, in the depths the next. But you can conquer this state of affairs by determining on a program of self-mastery and self-discipline. You have many talents and your charming personality draws others to you almost magnetically. It would be a shame to waste such precious gifts! NEW YORK (AP) — On March 26, NBC will air a 90-minute music special sponsored by Bell Telephone. And composer Marvin Hamlisch will be there to say hello and play three of his better-known compositions.

It's kind of a homecoming for the tall, 31-year-old New Yorker, who labored as a rehearsal pianist on "Bell Telephone Hour" shows a decade ago while still a music student at Queens College and Juilliard.

Hamlisch, who says he earned $12 an hour then, earns a bit more these days, as befits a man who copped three Oscars in 1974 for his music work in two movies, "The Sting" and "The Way We Were."

But he hasn't gone Hollywood. He's remained New York. He lives in a Park Avenue bachelor pad, furnished for comfort, no show, with an old upright piano handy for his well-paid tussles with the muse.

Kissinger Confers In Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conferred with Colombian President Alfonso Lopez today during an overnight visit to one of the few surviving democracies in South America.

A senior American official told newsmen traveling on Kissinger's plane that the secretary's original itinerary did not include Colombia because relations between the two countries are so good Kissinger thought he could use his time to better advantage in countries which present more problems.

Colombia was added to the tour after persistent appeals from President Lopez and Foreign Minister Indalecio Lievano. The American official said Kissinger wanted to demonstrate American support of the Lopez government, which has been plagued by violence, and that he believed the stop in Colombia would help ease criticism of his courtship last week of the dictatorial regimes in Peru and Brazil.

There were violent protests against the visit Friday in Bogota and Medellin, and Kissinger on his arrival Sunday was driven from the airport to the seclusion of the president's ranch.

His only appearance in Bogota was to be for a luncheon he was giving for Lievano at the American ambassador's well-guarded residence. After the luncheon, he flies to Costa Rica, the fifth stop on his six-nation tour.

Clear Skies Cover Much Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clear skies covered most of the nation this morning. But there was general cloudiness over the Pacific coast states, Idaho and Nevada. And there was considerable cloudiness in the Ohio valley, the central and northern Appalachians, the lower Great Lakes region and Florida.

A cold front moving into the Pacific Northwest triggered rain, with snow at higher elevations, from western Washington into extreme northwest California. There was still some snow in Ohio, northwest Indiana and the central Appalachians. Shower and thunderstorm activity had been pushed southeastward to the southern tip of Florida.

Some rivers in northern Illinois were still above flood stage as a result of heavy rains during the weekend.

In the upper Yellowstone valley of Montana, winds began diminishing early today. Shortly before midnight, Livingston, Mont. had reported wind gusts of up to 69 miles per hour.

Chilly northwesterly winds blew briskly over the Atlantic coast states and the lower Great Lakes region. Temperatures dipped below zero in the northern portions of the upper Great Lakes region, and in the teens and 20s in much of the upper Mississippi valley and north Atlantic coast states. Readings in the 30s and 40s prevailed from the Carolinas and Georgia through much of the Gulf Coast states.

Temperatures around the nation ranged from 10 at Marquette, Mich., to 67 at Key West, Fla.

FBI Nabs 6 At 'Bomb Factory'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI is sifting through piles of explosives and radical writings seized from a makeshift bomb plant in an effort to pinpoint the source of Northern California terrorist attacks.

From 130 to 150 pounds of explosives were discovered Saturday in a predawn raid by FBI and police SWAT teams on a Richmond, Calif., house. Three men and three women, surprised while sleeping, were arrested and face arraignment on explosives charges today.

A seventh person was arrested after a stakeout later Saturday in Oakland. Police identified him as David Miller, 21, wanted in Madison, Wis., for assaulting a policeman during a demonstration in 1973. He was held in lieu of $100,000 bail on an explosives charge.

In the Richmond house the FBI also said it found literature from the Emiliano Zapata Unit and New World Liberation Front (NWLF) — a group which recently issued communiques threatening Patricia Hearst and her family.

The San Francisco Chronicle quoted underground sources today as saying the seven persons arrested comprise almost the entire membership of the Emiliano Zapata Unit. The newspaper said the terrorist group used for its front an aboveground bookstore and communication center called the New Dawn Collective in Berkeley.

FBI Special Agent-in-Charge Charles Bates said it would "take a little time" to determine to which group those arrested belonged. He said the raid resulted from information gathered after the arrests Feb. 17 of two alleged terrorists in a Marin County shootout. New Dawn literature was found in their van.

Bates said there were about three dozen terrorist bombings in the San Francisco Bay area in 1975 and at least a half dozen so far this year. No one has yet been charged in those bombings, but the weekend arrests appeared to be the first major break in efforts to penetrate the tightly organized terrorist cadres.

"We've got an awful lot of information. There are lots of things to follow up on, dealing with material taken from the houses," Bates said Sunday. "We've had various things to go on for quite a while, but this is the arrest of more people and the recovery of more explosives than we've had."

Another terrorist action was reported Sunday, but it appeared to have occurred before the weekend arrests.

Eleven damaged Pacific Gas & Electric power poles were discovered in Marin County following receipt of a communique signed by the New World Liberation Front demanding free utilities. PG&E spokesman Paul Girard said the wooden poles "had been cut partially through."

Clear Derailment In Putnam County

OTTAWA, Ohio (AP) — Rail traffic was expected to resume late Sunday on the B&O rail through here following the derailment of 12 cars of a B&O freight Saturday night.

There were no injuries in the accident, which occurred in a switching area on the north side of town. The cause of the derailment remained under investigation.

Free School Books Said Good Idea

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — State School Supt. Harold H. Negley says he agrees with the Indianapolis school chief that the state should supply free textbooks for all public school pupils.

Supt. Karl R. Kalp noted Sunday, "Typewriter and home economics and shop equipment are furnished to them, why not textbooks?"

Indianapolis charges kindergarten pupils $6 a year for books and pupils in grades one through eight $12. At one time more than $119,000 was due the board in delinquent textbook fees.

"I feel this (the state providing free books) would be desirable in the long run, but accomplishing it is not practical at this time," Negley said. "The state is in a financial pinch regarding funds for education."

It even includes your own safe deposit box.

Clear Derailment In Putnam County

OTTAWA, Ohio (AP) — Rail traffic was expected to resume late Sunday on the B&O rail through here following the derailment of 12 cars of a B&O freight Saturday night.

There were no injuries in the accident, which occurred in a switching area on the north side of town. The cause of the derailment remained under investigation.

Free School Books Said Good Idea

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — State School Supt. Harold H. Negley says he agrees with the Indianapolis school chief that the state should supply free textbooks for all public school pupils.

Supt. Karl R. Kalp noted Sunday, "Typewriter and home economics and shop equipment are furnished to them, why not textbooks?"

Indianapolis charges kindergarten pupils $6 a year for books and pupils in grades one through eight $12. At one time more than $119,000 was due the board in delinquent textbook fees.

"I feel this (the state providing free books) would be desirable in the long run, but accomplishing it is not practical at this time," Negley said. "The state is in a financial pinch regarding funds for education."

FBI Special Agent-in-Charge Charles Bates said it would "take a little time" to determine to which group those arrested belonged. He said the raid resulted from information gathered after the arrests Feb. 17 of two alleged terrorists in a Marin County shootout. New Dawn literature was found in their van.

Bates said there were about three dozen terrorist bombings in the San Francisco Bay area in 1975 and at least a half dozen so far this year. No one has yet been charged in those bombings, but the weekend arrests appeared to be the first major break in efforts to penetrate the tightly organized terrorist cadres.

"We've got an awful lot of information. There are lots of things to follow up on, dealing with material taken from the houses," Bates said Sunday. "We've had various things to go on for quite a while, but this is the arrest of more people and the recovery of more explosives than we've had."

Another terrorist action was reported Sunday, but it appeared to have occurred before the weekend arrests.

Eleven damaged Pacific Gas & Electric power poles were discovered in Marin County following receipt of a communique signed by the New World Liberation Front demanding free utilities. PG&E spokesman Paul Girard said the wooden poles "had been cut partially through."

ValuPak

Every banking service you're likely to need for a single monthly fee.

You ought to have a safe place to keep your valuable papers and possessions.

That's why a safe deposit box is one of the many services included in our ValuPakSM plan.

So things you'd never want to lose are locked safely in the bank. Like the deed to your house, your will, insurance policies, maybe even Aunt Millie's antique brooch.

You get a $5-size safe deposit box or a $5 yearly credit towards a larger box (size availability may vary at some offices), plus every other banking service you're likely to need—all for a single monthly fee: $2.50.

Here's what you get with our ValuPak plan.

Unlimited Check Writing.
Write as many checks as you need without additional charge. And there's no minimum balance to keep.

Personalized Checks.
Choose from a wide variety of check designs. All the checks you need will be fully personalized.

Overdraft Protection.
Ready ReserveSM service protects against checking account overdrafts. It's also a pre-approved loan that you can write with a check, up to your credit limit. But, there's no finance charge until you use it.

24-Hour Banking Service.
Choose either our Master ChargeSM or Anytime BankSM card. Both operate the Anytime Bank machines in town, all around Ohio. Master Charge also is good for purchases at stores and cash advances at banks all across the country (finance charges extra).

Statement Savings Account With Bonus Deposit.
We add a $2.50 bonus deposit when you open a Statement Savings Account with $10 or convert a Passbook Account. Every quarter you'll receive a statement listing all account activity. The interest earned and the current balance. Statement Savings makes saving more convenient than ever.

Reduced Rates on Installment Loans.
Make lower monthly payments because of a reduced interest rate.

Arrange your loan at any of our offices or through your dealer (first mortgage and student loans not included).

Safe Deposit Box.
A $5 safe deposit box or a $5 credit toward any larger size box. (Availability may vary from office to office.)

Check Cashing Guarantee.
Your check for up to $100 will be cashed without additional identification at any of our offices.

Personal Budget Profile.
A thorough comparison of your personal spending with expenditures of individuals or families of similar circumstances.

Unlimited Traveler's Checks, Official Checks or Money Orders.
All the First National City Traveler's Checks, Official Checks and Money Orders you need.

That's our ValuPak plan. It eliminates the separate service charges you've been paying here or there. And it can all be arranged at any of our offices with one application.
